FIELD SERVICE ABUSES ROUSE IRE OF CLERKS

Economy Drive Results in Half-Holiday Being Denied Workers.

CONDITIONS TERMED ALMOST "BARBARIC"

Leave Refused, Promotions Within Grades Taboo, Labor Intervenes.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

An unannounced order by the Bureau of the Budget forbidding incurring of deficits in any Government department or bureau has set at naught the Saturday half-holiday law so far as the field service of the Federal Government is concerned.

Conditions in the field service of Government employment — which means persons employed in Government work outside Washington—are in sharp contrast with conditions existing in Washington, if hundreds of complaints received here are to be given credit.

Far from improving since the last Congress decreed a Saturday half-day the year round for Government employes, working conditions in the field service have become more onerous. Whipped by orders to cut down expenses, bureau chiefs in the field service have added to the working hours of employes and refused to allow the annual leave prescribed by law and even forbidden sick leave.

Labor Plans Fight.

A national conclave of labor leaders may be called to combat the growing tendency of the administration to make Government working conditions heavier.

Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, has sent a message of distress to Luther Steward, president of the federation, to return immediately to Washington to take charge of the fight, in which the aid of William Green, president, and Frank Morrison, secretary, of the American Federation of Labor, will be enlisted.

The employes are annoyed and disappointed at the administration's decision to forbid any promotions within grades to Government employes this fiscal year and the next. Miss McNally protested yesterday that such a course was in direct contradiction to the announced policy of President Hoover and declared that unless Cabinet heads changed their decision, organized labor would appeal directly to President Hoover to see that the plain intent of the law, enacted by Congress and strengthened and reiterated on numerous occasions in the last few years, be followed.

Sarcasm Greets Wood Argument.

The question of paying the grade salaries prescribed by law is being subordinated by leaders of the employes at the moment. They do not want the country to get the impression that the Government employe is merely seeking to get his, without any thought of the worry and trouble which has descended on the rest of the Nation.

They are sarcastic in their private replies to the argument advanced by Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, who painted a picture of a typical Government employe as one having a sinecure, who rods about in expensive automobiles, worked only a few hours a day and dressed in fur coats and silk hats, and whose real vocation was socializing around and having a good time with their jobs given the necessary attention of an avocation.

Against this picture they have letters from hundreds of Government employes in every State which tell of the growing oppression of debt, of doctors unpaid for their services, and the protests of persons who are worked long hours, every day in the week, for comparatively low pay.

"There is no trouble with the Saturday half-holiday law in Washington. It is, in general, being observed. But, Miss McNally protested, conditions are far different in the field.

Conditions Called Shameful.

"There is one thing which commentators on Government working conditions should keep in mind," Miss McNally said. "For every Government employe in Washington there are others in the so-called field service.

Crew of Blazing Ship Thought Lost

Rescue Doubted by Vessel Nearby as Flames Rage Over Entire Craft.

London, May 26 (A.P.)—Radio messages received at Lloyd's Land and station late tonight reported that steamship said to be the Portuguese Corretora Primeiro was afire at latitude 45 degrees 40 minutes north and longitude 7 degrees 55 minutes west, and that the fate of the crew was uncertain.

The British steamship Dunkwa, which gave the first report, said the steamer was afire from end to end and that there had been several explosions. The Dunkwa was reported as messaging that it was alongside and had lowered a boat.

The German ship Ubena, also nearby, doubted that the Dunkwa had all of the Portuguese ship's crew aboard, because of the completeness with which the flames enveloped the ship. The Corretora Primeiro, of 872 gross tons, is 181.3 feet long.

Memorial Unveiled To Titanic's Victims

This granite memorial to the men who gave their lives that women and children might be saved when the Titanic sank was unveiled yesterday. Shown in inset is Mrs. William Howard Taft.

President and First Lady Hear Men of Marine Disaster Lauded.

Immortalizing the sacrifice of the men who perished in the greatest marine disaster of all time that "women and children first" might be a glorious reality, a granite memorial was unveiled here yesterday before President Hoover and a notable audience as the tribute from the Nation's womanhood.

The ceremonies took place at the foot of New Hampshire avenue, on the new Riverside drive, close to the Potomac River, where the pennies and nickels of more than 20,000 American women, pouring in from all parts of the world, have reared the Titanic Memorial, the figure of a robed man with arms outstretched in the form of a cross, erect on a slab forming the center of a curving, commodious seat.

At the base is inscribed: "To the brave men who perished in the wreck of the Titanic, April 15, 1912. They gave their lives that women and children might be saved." Below are carved the words, "Erected by the Women of America."

It was unveiled by Mrs. William Howard Taft, the first contributor to the fund, in the presence of a crowd numbering, besides the President and Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Secretary of Labor Doak, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Postmaster General Brown, Attorney General Mitchell, Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Doak, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Borah, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Capper, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Tydings, Mrs. Walcott, Mrs. Fess, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Dill, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Couzens, Mrs. Vare, Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. Shipstead, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Steiwer, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Moses, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Bratton, Mrs. Hebert, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Ladd, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Ransdell, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Trammell, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Bulwinkle, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Lehlbach, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Secretary of Labor Doak, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Postmaster General Brown, Attorney General Mitchell, Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Doak, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Borah, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Capper, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Tydings, Mrs. Walcott, Mrs. Fess, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Dill, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Couzens, Mrs. Vare, Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. Shipstead, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Steiwer, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Moses, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Bratton, Mrs. Hebert, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Ladd, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Ransdell, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Trammell, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Bulwinkle, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Lehlbach, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Secretary of Labor Doak, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Postmaster General Brown, Attorney General Mitchell, Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Doak, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Borah, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Capper, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Tydings, Mrs. Walcott, Mrs. Fess, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Dill, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Couzens, Mrs. Vare, Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. Shipstead, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Steiwer, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Moses, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Bratton, Mrs. Hebert, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Ladd, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Ransdell, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Trammell, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Bulwinkle, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Lehlbach, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Secretary of Labor Doak, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Postmaster General Brown, Attorney General Mitchell, Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Doak, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Borah, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Capper, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Tydings, Mrs. Walcott, Mrs. Fess, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Bingham, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Dill, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Couzens, Mrs. Vare, Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. Shipstead, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Frazier, Mrs. Steiwer, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Moses, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Bratton, Mrs. Hebert, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Ladd, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Ransdell, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Trammell, Mrs. Fish, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Bulwinkle, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Lehlbach, Mrs. Wilson.

ELECTRIC CUT FOES WAGE LOSING FIGHT

Utilities Body Overrules Bowen to Admit Data at Rate-Change Hearing.

The Potomac Electric Power Co. continued to wage a losing battle yesterday at thhe second day of the Public Utilities Commission hearing to consider a modification of the sliding scale under which electric rates are fixed for the District despite the fact that civic and business interests expressed approval of the present rates at the outset of the session.

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech continued to block every effort of S. Russell Bowen, counsel of the power company, to introduce evidence intended to better the position of the utility, while at the same time they were able to pour in more evidence unfavorable to the company over the objections of its counsel.

The legal battle was at times intense. In practically every instance Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, upheld Mr. Roberts and Mr. Keech, and to each unfavorable overruling Mr. Bowen noted an exception.

Arguments will be heard by the commission this morning, and it is expected that the hearing will be concluded by noon. All indications are that the battle will be resumed in the District Supreme Court after the utilities body attempts to inaugurate a new sliding scale.

STOCK FALL CURBED BY PROBE OF BEARS

Wall Street Is Surprised as Exchange Committee Starts Inquiry.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—A new stock exchange inquiry into the activities of the bears tended to check the headlong decline in share prices today, but the market was still wobbly.

The stock exchange committee on business conduct took Wall street by surprise by circulating among members a questionnaire demanding complete information as to the extent and identity of the bear interest.

Not since the violent crash in autumn of 1929, the first phase of the 1929-31 bear market, has the exchange circulated such a questionnaire. The current questionnaire is only the third one of that character in stock exchange history. It was first used in 1917.

Only last autumn, however, the exchange made some searching inquiries into the activities of traders who were reputed to be "big bears," and rumor has it that some were warned to go slowly.

Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, however, has explained that neither the questionnaire of 1929 nor the investigations last autumn, disclosed that bears alone were an important market factor.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Whitney, as well as other exchange officials, have taken occasion to defend short selling, when conducted properly, as

Midnight Saturday Is Final Hour in Post-Zain Contest

Ad Competition Will Close at That Time; Write More and Mail Them in So as to Be Eligible for the $1,000 Grand Prize.

Midnight is the hour.

Saturday, May 30, is the day!

That is the deadline for you amateur ad writers to submit your ads in The Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest. To be eligible for the grand award of $1,000, which will be given at the close of this week, you must write at least one ad about each of the 35 participating concerns. Of course, the more ideas you express in forms of ads, the greater your chance of winning; so if you have written about each of the 35 concerns, write another set or as many more as you like.

Like Cinderella of story book fame, when the clock tolls midnight Saturday, May 30, your fine chances, as did her fine clothing, will disappear unless you have written an ad about each concern. What a disappointment to you, and think how you would feel if your ad should be the one selected by the judges as the winner and they found you credited with only 34 ads. You may think you have written one ad about each of the concerns, but one or more of them may not have complied with the rules of the contest or you neglected to write your name, address and telephone number on the back, or you may have written more than one ad on a single piece of paper. Those ads then would be eliminated in the final count; and instead of being credited with one ad about

CABINET FINDS TRADE FACTORS POINT TO GAINS

Leaders Fail to Amplify 20-Word Statement on Trade Situation.

STATISTICS REVEAL FAVORABLE TRENDS

Administration Men Agree Recovery May Take Two-Year Period.

(United Press.)

Expert statisticians, who have pored over complicated masses of figures, watching for a point where there was a sign of business improvement, yesterday enabled the administration to make its first pronouncement in many months on the economic situation.

The statement, regarded as of considerable significance since it could be aimed only at pointing to improvement, came from the White House. It said:

"The President and his advisers have been going over the economic situation and have found many factors that are favorable."

The statement was issued after a Cabinet meeting in place of President Hoover's Tuesday press conference. Most administration leaders went into silence at once and refused to amplify it.

Follows Study of Statistics.

It was learned that the statement was issued only after study over a period of months of statistics which were sufficiently important in the minds of administration leaders to warrant the undoubted risk of their terse "handout."

The plane of presumable stability, according to President Hoover's personal chart of business, was reached at about 30 per cent below what it was eighteen months ago. This chart has played a big part in recent Cabinet meetings. President Hoover is following its every move. It is based on general trends. Figures from which it is compiled are more specific.

Statistics told the President that the Federal Reserve production figures reached a presumable low in December. Another authoritative compilation, whose source is confidential, reached low in January. For several months there has been a slow betterment. Factory production figures for April were 11 per cent above those for January 15, allowing for expected seasonal improvement.

Iron, Steel Situation Bad.

Figures for the "heavy" industries like steel and iron remain bad. The statisticians relied on figures for other industries—finished products such as prepared foods, textiles, leather goods, shoes and automobiles.

In 1921 shoes and textiles led the way out of depression. It was true also that in 1921 foreign trade and building activities followed them. That is not true now.

Automobile production has been improving for several months, and at the end of April was up to that of a year ago. Leather and shoes reached a 7 per cent rise for April; food products, 10 per cent. Department store sales showed an 8 to 9 per cent improvement, despite the fact that the early Easter caused most of the Easter buying to be done in March. In dollars the sales were 2 per cent under those for April, 1930. Because of the dollar's increased buying power, bulk sales undoubtedly were greater.

CENTRAL HIGH COMPANY A IS DRILL WINNER

Cadets Awarded Prizes by Gen. Sladen, of Third Corps Area.

COMPANY L, WESTERN, WINS SECOND PLACE

Co. C, Tech, 3d in Contest; 20,000 Children, Parents See Exercises.

Drilling within a shade of perfection in one of the most closely contested competitions of its kind in the history of the Washington High School Cadets, Company A, of Central, the First Regiment, under the command of Capt. Thomas S. Hinkel, won first place in the annual competitive drill of the local public school brigade at Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Company A received the unusually high grading of 98.9 per cent from a group of officers of the United States Army, who are the judges.

Second place went to Company L, Western, Fourth Regiment, under the command of Capt. Carl H. Swanson, with a score of 98.8, and third place went to Company C, of McKinley, Second Regiment, led by Capt. Thomas P. Corwin, with a rating of 98.7.

Captain Gets Medal.

The captain of the winning company received the Allison Naylor gold medal, the original of which will be relinquished next year, a copy, awarded by the Washington Chamber of Commerce, to be retained. The company received the first honor red ribbon, which will be placed in a glass case in the main corridor of Central High School. The ribbon was held for the past year by Company H, of Western. Each member of the winning company received a gold medal.

The awards were made by Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, United States Army, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, who also reviewed the brigade.

The judges were: Capt. Alexander R. Bolling, Lieut. Thomas H. Allen and Lieut. James C. White, of the Headquarters Corps in Washington of the United States Infantry.

Craigie Trained Companies.

The winning companies were trained by Col. Wallace M. Craigie, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics in Washington high schools, and Maj. Raymond G. Payne, Col. A. W. Maish and Lieut. Col. John G. Donovan, assistant professor of military science and tactics.

Fully 20,000 school children, parents and teachers were in the grandstands of the stadium when the brigade of 2,000 cadets assembled on the field for the announcement of the winners. As in past years, the suspense was terrific as the name of the winning company was transmitted from Col. Craigie to Cadet Col. Daniel C. Pollock, of Central, who notified the adjutant.

As the adjutant stood at attention before the brigate, the final rays of the late May afternoon sun caught the blue, white belted uniforms, brightened the flying furls of Old Glory and cadet flags, glistened on the swords of officers. As the adjutant turned in the direction of the winning company, the atmosphere, electrical with tension, was shattered with cheers from the more than 1,000 students from Central High School.

Crisis Near in Fascist And Catholic Clashes

Charges Fly in Wake of Violence in Several Towns of Italy; Secret Society of Church Accused of Opposing Government.

Vatican City, May 26 (A.P.).—Open clashes between members of Catholic organizations and Fascists throughout Italy centered attention today on what, it is believed, is becoming a delicate situation.

Lavoro Fascista published what it claimed was an accurate report of a secret meeting of the "Catholic action," the account requiring almost a full page. The Osservatore Romano, organ of the Vatican, printed two-thirds of a column devoted to alleged cases of intimidation and violence by Fascists against members of Catholic organizations at Milan, Benevento, Premilcore, Portico and other towns.

Under the Lateran treaty between the Vatican and the Italian government, "Catholic action" is recognized as an official religious body, but the Fascists for a long time have charged it with political activity. The Pope gave it encouragement last week when he received delegates attending the general meeting of this organization and at the same time took cognizance of charges that Fascists were using repressive measures against it. Another incident adding to the tension occurred Sunday, when, according to Vatican authorities, two young Fascists attacked a Vatican mail van, injuring its two drivers.

These occurrences are declared by careful observers to be merely outstanding examples indicating a general trend of hostility between the Catholic and Fascist groups. Many of them have been taken by the newspapers here as a subject of anxious comment.

The Osservatore Romano today published a strong defense of the activities of the Catholic organizations, upholding their rights. Officially neither the Vatican nor the Italian government has taken any action toward remedying this situation.

The Osservatore Romano published the following list of alleged instances of Fascist violence or intimidation:

At Milan Fascist students destroyed banners carried by Catholic students and tore off their "Catholic Action" buttons.

At Rome women students were insulted within the university courtyards by Fascists who demanded that they remove their "Catholic Action" buttons.

At Premilcore Fascist Inspector Ricci forbade the formation of Catholic societies and made parents sign a declaration that they would not permit their sons and daughters to join "Catholic Action."

Bands of several hundred Fascist university students held a demonstration in front of the Catholic Students Club in the Piazza Stagostino tonight.

Afterward they marched through downtown streets singing the Fascist hymn, "Giovenezza," adding improvised stanzas directed against the church.

They have been ordered to convene at 11 a. m. tomorrow, a member of

FIVE RAIDS IN MIDCITY FOLLOW POLICE HUNT FOR LEGATION THIEVES

Seadromes to Allow Drinking and Gaming

Artificial Isles for Planes Can Go Far as Reno, Says Inventor.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The American flag will fly over the eight seadromes that Edward R. Armstrong proposes to stretch across the Atlantic Ocean, but that does not mean that the seadromes will be dry. Neither does it mean that gambling will be prohibited. To be positive about it, the Armstrong seadromes will permit both drinking and gambling.

Mr. Armstrong, who is the inventor of the seadrome, or floating airport, made this fact clear when he came here yesterday to confer with various Government officials.

The Armstrong seadrome, a model of which is to be seen at the Mayflower Hotel, is an ocean airport that can be maintained at sea indefinitely. Mr. Armstrong proposes to stretch eight of them across the Atlantic at intervals of 380 miles as refueling and meteorological stations.

These seadromes, according to experts, will make transatlantic and, for that matter, transpacific air travel practicable.

To start with, Mr. Armstrong is going to locate a seadrome, or floating American island, about 250 miles off

150 MEN ARE TAKEN AND RUM IS SEIZED

Gambling Devices, 'Booking' Paraphernalia Are Found by Vice Squad.

A squad of headquarters detectives, on the trail of suspects in the liquor theft from the legation of El Salvador, played havoc yesterday with gamblers and operators of speakeasies in the 1rst Precinct. Five warrantless raids resulted.

Much to the embarrassment of the vice squad and the First Precinct officials, the four headquarters detectives went beyond the scope of their official duties for the day, and disturbed the routine of bartenders and handbook makers who had been operating in comparative security.

Their sudden appearance, which was undesigned, caused consternation in the ranks of the small racketeers, because none of them suspected that the headquarters detectives were particularly intrested in gaming or liquor selling. These affairs are usually handled by the vice squad.

Admitted, They Get Evidence.

In each instance, they reported to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, they were admitted by the operators of the gaming houses after explaining to them that they were looking for "a couple of fellows." Inside, they said, they saw evidence of gaming and liquor selling, and as a matter of form they notified Inspector T. R. Bean. His squad followed up the headquarters detectives.

By some coincidence all the places raided are in the First Precinct, which has tended to revive interest in the pending appearance before the grand jury of Harry N. Douthitt, publisher of an unofficial police magazine.

Mr. Douthitt, who was slugged several weeks ago, is to be asked to tell what he knows about the existence of a $30,000 a month "ice bill," which, he said, is used to keep things cool for gamblers in the First Precinct.

Prisoners, Evidence Seized.

After the headquarters detectives had finished looking for the "couple of fellows," it was found that 150 men had been taken to headquarters, 75 charged as Government witnesses; 350 bottles of alleged beer confiscated, and several men charged with permitting gaming.

The sudden activity against the gamblers caused a conference of police officials at headquarters, in which the four participants in the raids explained how they chanced to come upon the places. From the vice squad came the explanation that the five places had been "suspected" for a long time, although no definite action was taken against them.

Other police activity during the day included the placement of a charge of murder against Harry Burch, who, with Robert E. Martz, was ordered held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury in the murder of Irving L. Zirkle last Saturday night.

Cunningham Killer Unnamed.

In the murder of Jack H. Cunningham, slain police informer, a coroner's jury decided that he came to his death at the hands of parties unknown, after several witnesses had testified regarding the shooting.

In their search for the suspects in the assault on Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Charge d'Affaires of the El Salvadorean Legation, Detective Sergts. Larry O'Dea, Arthur Fihelly, O. W. Mansfield and Howard Ogle unwittingly stumbled into an alleged speakeasy in the rear of a "haberdashery" store on Ninth street near H street northwest.

Next they went to a "fruit" store on Ninth street near I street, where they found a bookmaking setup in the rear. Then followed similar disclosures in the second floor club on Ninth street near D street; another on the third floor of a building on Ninth street near G street, and a fifth on I street near Fourteenth, four doors from where Jack Cunningham was fatally wounded.

The first four places accidentally uncovered were all situated within five blocks of each other. Incidentally, the headquarters men were not looking for gamblers or bootleggers, and din't happed to look in other places in that area.

In the first raid, they went behind the haberdashery store which,

JURY ADMITS ERROR IN KIRKLAND VERDICT

Indiana Youth Found Guilty of Assault; Murder Was Intended, Panel Says.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 26 (U.P.).—A jury of rural Indiana residents found Virgil Kirkland guilty of assault and battery with intent to commit criminal assault tonight, only to discover that the sentence therefor was from one to ten years in prison instead of death in the electric chair.

Three of the jurors told a bailiff after they had been discharged that the jury had intended to sentence young Kirkland to death for the murder of his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, who succumbed at a Gary "gin party" last fall.

The situation was unprecedented in the annals of Hoosier trials, said Judge Grant Crumpacker. "I am frankly puzzled," he said. "I do not know what to do."

"The jurors told me that they got mixed up in deciding what charge to find Kirkland guilty of," said Bailiff William Hardesty, in making the statement which electrified the courtroom, turned the smiles of Kirkland's mother to tears and sent newspapermen frantically to their telegraph instruments to change their accounts of the trial, one of the most sensational ever held in Indiana.

"Foreman Ashton, Claude Walters and Hugh Morrow all told me," continued the bailiff, "that they had meant to send Kirkland to the electric chair. They said they did not realize their verdict carried with it only a prison sentence.

"They asked me why Mrs. Kirkland seemed so jubilant when the verdict was read. I told them it was because her son got off with such a light sentence.

"'My God,' they said, 'we wanted to sentence him to death.'"

Assistant Prosecutor Robert Estil announced that he would demand the jury be asked tomorrow whether its verdict of "guilty of assault and battery with intent to commit rape" was the verdict really intended.

"If the jurors are in agreement that they want Kirkland electrocuted," Estil continued, "I will demand this be declared a mistrial."

Mr. Estil said that he had meant to poll the jury immediately after the verdict was read, but that the for-

Executions Following Coup Blamed on Former King and Ministers.

Madrid, May 26 (A.P.).—Charges against former King Alfonso XIII of Spain and several former monarchist leaders, accusing them of criminal responsibility for the executions of Capts. Garcia Fernandes and Ferman Galan, following the revolt at Jaca last December, were filed before the supreme court today.

The charges were sponsored by Francisco Galan, brother of Capt. Ferman Galan.

Charges also were filed against all of the members of the former cabinet of Marquis of Alhucemas, except Santiago Alba, accusing them of failing to try to prevent the coup d'etat of Gen. Primo de Rivera in 1923. These charges also referred to the former king, declaring that he should have tried to suppress the coup and execute Gen. de Rivera as a rebel.

The complaint also declares that the king permitted the constitution of 1876 to be suspended and that therefore he is personally to blame for subsequent events, including the Jaca executions.

Members of the cabinet of Gen. Damaso Berenguer also were accused in the charges on the ground that they permitted the executions.

Meantime the war department proceeded with plans to reduce the nation's army to 160,000 men, 40,000 of them in Morocco, by July 1.

Merger of various military units and shifting of officers and men who will remain in service proceeded with only simple ceremonies marking the changes. The reduction is expected to bring about an annual saving of approximately $20,000,000.

Under the plan of Minister of War Manuel Azana, the military units will be kept at full strength with ample equipment. In the past they have been below their nominal strength, which makes the actual reduction less than at first anticipated.

The war minister said that in case of war the peninsular army could be increased to from 500,000 to 1,000,000 men by using reserve drafts. The peace-time army is to be reduced from sixteen to eight complete divisions.

The ministry of justice tonight ordered the public registry office to

U. S. to Claim Bootleg Ring Owned Vessel I'm Alone

Note Denying Damages Expected to Be Sent to Canada Soon, Alleging Ship Destroyed in Gulf Was Property of Liquor Gang.

(United Press.)

A United States reply denying Canada's claim for damages in the famous I'm Alone rumrunning case is virtually completed, it was learned last night, and will be sent to Ottawa about June 10.

Unless the present draft is changed—and there is no prospect it will be—this Government will deny Canada's claim for pecuniary compensation on the ground that the I'm Alone, although Canadian-registered, actually was owned by an American bootleg ring. This contention will be based on evidence gathered during a two-year secret investigation of the liquor gangs which operated the ill-fated rum ship.

The I'm Alone, flying the Canadian flag, was sunk in the Gulf of Mexico March 22, 1929, by the American Coast Guard cutter Dexter. One member of the crew was drowned.

Canada's bill of particulars, asking compensation on behalf of the Eugene Cresser Shipping Co., was filed with the American agent, George Wharton Pepper, through the State Department.

This document was never made public. It was learned, however, that Canada enumerated the ship and articles aboard it for compensation, leaving the amount to the discretion of the judges.

In the view of United States officials familiar with the I'm Alone case Canada's claim for monetary damages

In the rear of the "haberdashery store" were found electrically operated doors, and a somewhat pretentious bar, they reported. Edward C. Ford, colored, 40 yearso old, of Four-and-One-half street near B street southwest, and Samuel Green, 30 years old, of U street near North Capitol street northwest, were charged with possession of liquor.

Vice Squad Kept Busy.

Hardly had the vice squad ended its work at this place when they received another call from the headquarters detectives that they had unearthed a gaming place a few blocks north of the alleged speakeasy.

In this raid the vice squad, armed with sledge hammers and axes, had to break through two electrically operated doors to seize a quantity of gambling charts and arrest 28 men. Steve J. Nichols, 33 years old, of Eleventh street near M street northwest, and Thomas W. Simon, 27 years old, of N street near Twelfth street northwest, were charged with setting up gaming tables.

Traffic was jammed near this place, as scores of motorists stopped to watch the procession of men into the police patrol wagons. In this case the alleged gambling rooms were behind a fruit store.

Gamnig Devices Seized.

When the vice squad thought it had ended its work for the day another call came from the four detectives, "looking for a couple of fellows," to come to Ninth street near D street. There they arrested 35 men, including William Baromi, 27 years old, of Crittenden street near Eighth street northwest, and Louis Palumbo, 23 years old, of D street near Ninth northwest, who were charged with setting up tables.

Then another call came a few minutes later to come to Ninth street near G, where another group of 35 men were arrested and a quantity of alleged racing charts were seized. Morgan G. Wilson, 35 years old, of B street near Fourth street northeast, was charged with setting up a gaming table.

LEAGUE BENEFITS BY GARDEN TOURS

Chevy Chase Beauty Spots Visited by Hundreds of Flower Lovers.

Approximately 1,000 flower lovers trooped to the first annual garden tour of the Chevy Chase Garden Club of America yesterday for the benefit of the Montgomery County Social Service League. Mrs. Richard Fay Jackson, chairman of the committee in charge, announced last night that the affair was a success and probably will be repeated next year.

Mrs. Jackson sold more than 700 tickets at the booth erected at Chevy Chase Circle and the rest of the tickets were sold at the entrances to the 23 gardens in old Chevy Chase which were opened to the public for the first time yesterday.

More than 800 persons viewed the extensive rose gardens of Whitman Cross and about 400 visited the estate of Capt. and Mrs. Chester C. Wells, which was beyond the beaten track.

Tea was served by Mrs. Frank Hood Schultz in the old slave cabin on Brookville farm. Mrs. Robert Carpenter also served tea.

The expenses of the tour will not amount to more than $100, Mrs. Jackson said, which will leave a tidy sum for the Social Service League, which is conducting a drive for $8,000 to complete its budget requirements.

Raided House Is Used As Court by Justice

The mountain went to Mahomet last night, when Justice of the Peace Robert Joyce, of Mount Rainier, Md., went to a raided house to hold court because there were too many prisoners to be brought to the court room in the town hall.

Town policemen and constables, headed, by Eugene Plumer, chief of police of Mount Rainier, arrested about 20 men on gambling charges when they raided a house on Thirty-eighth street near the coal yard. Fearing that some of the prisoners might be lost in transit, or that the court room would not hold them all, Judge Joyce was called in and went to the house.

ARLINGTON LAWSUIT HITS WOMEN VOTERS

Hedrick Impeachment Row Is Echoed in Claim for $60,000 Damages.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Suit for $60,000 against members of the committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County who signed a petition in June, 1930, against Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, which resulted in his attempted impeachment was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday by the Arlington Investment Corporation through its attorney, Edgar W. Pumphrey.

Named as defendants are: Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, president of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County; Mrs. Mary C. Williams, Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, Mrs. Bertha S. Kelly, Mrs. Ada H. Davidson, Mrs. Alice W. Semones and Mrs. Jessie W. Hunt.

In its suit the Investment Corporation states it owned a tract of land known as Waycroft, containing 50 acres, and that it had a good reputation for credit, reliability and prompt payment of its bills. It alleges that since charges were brought against Hedrick damages have been sustained to the property in Waycroft and to the credit of the corporation in the financial world.

Defendants in the case were signers of a petition presented to the circuit court which resulted in impeachment proceedings against Supervisor Hedrick, who at that time was a member of the board of directors and manager of the Arlington Investment Corporation. The charges grew out of a question of methods used in installation of water lines and sewers in the Waycroft subdivision owned and developed by the corporation.

Attorney Burnett Miller, of Culpeper, Va., who was associated in the prosecution of the case with Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, has been retained by the defendants to represent them when the case comes up June 15. Gloth will not be in the case.

The charges against Hedrick were dismissed by Judge Alexander Browning before whom the case was heard.

Supervisor Hedrick, when asked for a statement yesterday, said: "Other than to say that these proceedings were authorized more than a month ago, I have nothing to say."

An Arlington County Bicentennial Week will be a feature o fthe program of the County Bicentennial Council, following action taken at a meeting of the council last night when it adopted recommendations of the executive committee as reported.

As recommended there will be staged during the week a series of events commemorating the life of Washington. The bicentennial committees of the District of Columbia, the City of Alexandria and other nearby communities will be consulted with reference to dates for the Arlington County week to select a time which will not interfere with exercises in other communities.

One day of the week, as suggested by the committee, will be known as Arlington County pilgrimage day, when the school children of the county will visit Mount Vernon and Wakefield.

Another day the plan provides for an historical pageant in one of the beautiful outdoor settings of the county. The plan will be to precede the affair with a spetacular parade on Pennsylvania avenue, crossing the new Arlington Memorial Bridge to the scene of the pageant.

Another project included in the recommendations of the committee is that of a modern, well-equipped tourist camp to be located reasonably close to downtown Washington. It is pointed out that by conservative estimate there will be between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 visitors come to Washington during the bicentennial celebration next year.

Harry K. Green, Commissioner of Revenue, states that at least 20 per cent of the taxpayers of Arlington County have not made their returns for 1931. Returns must be made on or before June 1 to save a penalty of 10 per cent. The minimum penalty is $2. For benefit of taxpayers who can not get to the office at the Courthouse during the day, Commissioner Green announces his office will be open tomorrow, Friday and Monday nights from 7 to 9:30 o'clock.

He further states thatall persons over 21 years of age must make returns either in person or by agent. Minors making as much as $1,250 must make a State income return. Federal employes receiving all of their income from the Federal Government do not have to make a State income return, but must make returns on tangible and intangible personal property.

More than 75 varieties of home grown flowers were displayed by residents of Thrifton Village at monthly meeting of the Thrifton Village Improvement League last night in the Parish Hall of Grace Episcopal Church.

Awards for the best displays were as follows:

To H. C. Albin, for red and pink roses; to William T. Crawford, for white roses; Mrs. S. W. Fox, for Iris; Mrs. Elizabeth Windridge, for poppies; H. C. Albin, for peonies; Mrs. Dean Brundage, for lillies.

Judges were Mrs. P. E. Schaub, T. C. Johnson and E. P. Jinkins.

H. C. Albin gave an interesting talk on cultivation of roses. P. V. Roundy spoke on tulip growning and classification and S. C. Leizear on selection of varieties for home gardens.

Copies of the bulletin, "Some trees and shrubs suitable for use in the Piedmont Region," by the United States Department of Agriculture Bureau of Plant Industry were distributed.

The league voted to hold a fall flower show at its September meeting.

The American Legion Auxiliary of Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the Clarendon Methodist Church, Taylor and Clarendon avenues.

Mrs. Emma Wold, prominent Washington attorney, will be principal speaker at a meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County today at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse.

Mrs. Wold will take as her subject, "Woman's International Problems." The meeting will be preceded by a luncheon served by members of the Ashton Heights Club at 12:30 o'clock.

Cooperating with the beautification committee of Arlington County Bicentennial Council in its program for the celebration next year, the Lyon Village Citizens Association, meeting last night at the home of the president, William D. Medley, appropriated funds to provide prizes to be awarded in the village for the most beautiful homes and grounds and the best appearing block in the community. The executive committee was instructed to appoint a committee of three to serve on a board of judges to be organized by the bicentennial council.

The city planning and zoning committee was instructed to make an investigation of the reports that two business firms of the county are attempting to have properties in the county rezoned.

It was brought to the attention of the association that Marcey Bros., a diary located at Wilson boulevard and Rucker avenue, is seeking to have 30 feet of its property in the rear of the dairy now zoned residential A, rezoned as commercial. It was also declared that Lyon & Fitch, a real estate firm, would attempt to secure rezoning of several lots in the immediate vicinity from residential A to residential B.

MONTGOMERY BOND SALE AT PREMIUM

Baltimore Syndicate Takes Issues Totaling $248,000 on $11,482 Bonus.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Two issues of Montgomery County bonds yesterday brought bids which will result in a bonus of $11,482.20 for the county. The high bids which were accepted were offered by a syndicate of Baltimore investment bankers—John P. Baer Co., the Baltimore Co., Robert Garrett & Sons, and Jenkins, Whedbee & Poe.

The school bond issue was for 78,000 and brought a bid of 104.31, and the road bond issue of $170,000 brought a bid of 104.312, the difference being due to the longer maturities affecting the school bonds. Both issues are general county bond issues.

County officials were frankly elated at the high prices brought by the bonds, resulting in a large premium to the county. They pointed out that the issue of Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission bonds issued recently brought no higher premium, although the property of the suburban areas of Montgomery County and the water and sewage service itself are securities for the sanitary bonds. They declared that the high price was an indication of the faith and esteem for Montgomery County and its future held by the financial world. The bonds carry an interest rate of 4½ per cent.

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday appointed N. F. Rabner, of Bethesda, as a special auditor to audit the accounts of the clerk of the circuit court as they affect county funds. Mr. Rabner will begin his audit at once. He has had a wide experience in auditing, it is said.

Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer for the past ten years, yesterday was reappointed by the county commissioners. Assessments reviews for the two gas companies operating in Montgomery County, the Maryland Gas Transmission Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. of Washington occupied most of the time of the commissioners yesterday.

Robert Peter, jr., counsel for the gas companies, pointed out that the rapid expansion of the gas main service in the county has resulted in the addition of considerable property credited to the gas companies on the assessment books for taxation purposes and objected to the valuations on a number of these properties.

M. J. Lindsey, representing the Maryland State tax commission; Lawrence Chiswell, assessor representing the State tax commission in Montgomery County, and J. Hampton Griffith, county assessor, also were present at the hearing. Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners, said that the commissioners probably would render a decision at their Thursday meeting.

Extension of the campaign for $8,000 of the Montgomery County Social Service League until June 1 was announced yesterday by Walter B. Armstrong, chairman of the finance committee.

"Several districts ask more time to complete their canvass and the campaign is extended to permit the branch committee chairmen to finish. Many residents of the county have not been approached by the solicitors and those persons are urged to mail their contributions to the league headquarters at Rockville," Mr. Armstrong said.

State's Attorney H. Courtney Jenifer, of Baltimore County, will speak on the relationship of the social service agency and the juvenile court at the annual meeting of the Social Service League, which will be held Tuesday night at the Manor Club, Norbeck. Mr. Jenifer, who has served four terms, is particularly interested in juvenile court guidance and is a member of the Maryland Board of Children's Aid Society.

Committee reports will be presented by Miss Estelle Moore, chairman of the home welfare committee; Edwin W. Broome, chairman of the Junior Social Service League; Thomas C. Kelley, chairman of the publicity committee; W. B. Armstrong, chairman of the finance committee; Mrs. J. Darby Bowman, representative from the Social Service League to the Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. George C. Shinn, social service chairman from the federation to the league. A dinner at 6:15 o'clock will precede the meeting.

Town officials of Rockville and county officials will meet tomorrow at the courthouse in Rockville to discuss plans for the widening of the town's main street, Montgomery avenue, in front of the new courthouse to the intersection of the Frederick road. The meeting has been called by the county commissioners and Mayor J. Roger Spates and members of the town council have been invited to participate.

Plans for the widening have been prepared by Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Harry Shaw, county engineer. The plans will be studied at the meeting and approved or changes recommended.

The widening of the avenue which has presented a dangerous traffic situation because of the narrowing of the thoroughfare at the intersection of one of the most important roads in the county was made possible when the new courthouse was planned by acquiring the block west of the old courthouse in its entirety. Funds are available for the improvement and work will be started as soon as plans are approved by the county and town officials, according to Commissioner Lacy Shaw.

Dr. Howell Forsyth, local druggist, was elected president of the Silver Spring Lions Club at its meeting Monday in the Masonic Temple at Silver Spring. Other officers elected were the Rev. William R. Moody, first vice president; William H. Thies, second vice president; Beryl R. English, third vice president; W. Edwin Warfield, secretary; Raymond Johnson, treasurer; F. Joseph Weber, Lion tamer; J. Oscar Foulk, tailtwister.

Directors elected were William E. Smith, James J. Hanan, Alfred T. Newbold and Albert O. Denham. Mr. Forsyth was elected delegate to the Internation Lions Club Convention, at Toronto, Canada, in July. Bryl English was elected alternate.

The last meeting of the Woman's Improvement Club of Silver Spring before the summer recess will be held tomorrow night at the clubhouse.

An outline of the educational health survey to be made in Montgomery County by Dr. Allen Weir Freeman, of the Johns Hopkins School of Public Hygiene, was described Monday night by the hygienist at a meeting of the health advisory committee at the Manor Club.

Dr. Freeman said a good health department for Montgomery County could be purchased for $40,000. The amount now expended is $11,000. The principle objects of a good health service, he said, is the control of communicable diseases and watchfulness over water, sewage, and the milk supply.

Miss Lavinia Engle, of the Montgomery County health department, presided. The following advisory committee was appointed to work with Dr. Freeman: Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer; Dr. G. V. Hartley, president of the Montgomery County Medical Society; Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners; Dr. J. W. Bird, president of the Montgomery County Social Service League; Miss Hermine Badenhoop, chief of county nurses; Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of county schools; Miss Estelle Moore, and Ralph Lee.

Lott, an inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital for the Insane in circuit court at Rockville yesterday through his committee, Attorney Harold C. Smith, of Rockville. The petition alleges that the minister was of unsound mind at the time of his marriage, November 7, 1927, at Seat Pleasant, Md., and incapable of judging the effect of his actions. The couple lived with his people at Silver Spring until November 22, 1927, when they separated. There are no children. The minister had been of unsound mind for some time before the marriage, the petition states.

HOOVER CRIME BODY HERE TO PUSH WORK

Only Two Reports Made So Far; Appropriation to Expire on July 1.

(Associated Press.)

With hardly a month remaining in which to complete the gigantic survey of crime assigned them by President Hoover, members of the Wickersham Commission gathered in the Capital last night prepared to speed their efforts.

Of the more than half a score of subjects undertaken by the commission for investigation, only two have been reported upon during the last 23 months.

Eight remain if the commission's work is to be completed before its abolition July 1, when the last of its $500,000 appropriation expires.

Indication was given at commission headquarters that when the members gather today for their second meeting this month, a request will be made that they remain in the Capital every minute possible for the next month.

After that time, unless private funds are advanced, the eleven members will have neither office space nor clerical force with which to work.

At least ten of the members were expected to be present today, with only Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, signifying his inability to attend. It was predicted also that a majority of the members would be almost constantly at their desks here from today on.

Nevertheless, more than one member has forecast that the entire crime survey could not be well-rounded into completion before the commission is abolished.

Unless the commission's plans are changed, the next document to be sent to the White House will be a study of criminal prosecutions and courts, prepared under the direction of Monte Lemann, New Orleans lawyer.

Many of the forthcoming reports are officially said to have been practically completed, with at least a possibility that they can be submitted before July 1.

Bridegroom Faces Perjury Charge

Wife's Mother Accuses Him of Falsifying Daughter's Age.

A warrant charging perjury was issued yesterday in Marlboro, Md., against Joseph Calvin Lloyd, 23, who described himself as a fireman, and gave an address on Fifteenth street southeast, near K street. The charge was made by Mrs. Katherine Jenkins, mother of Alice Loretta Randall, of Ninth street southeast, near K street.

The mother said that when Lloyd obtained a license Monday to marry the girl he gave her age as 18, although she is only 16. It is reported that the man and girl told the license clerk that they planned to be married at once and go to Baltimore. The license has not yet been returned to the clerk by the minister who married them.

Mrs. Jenkins said that she did not object to the match, but that the girl had known Lloyd only three days when the license was applied for. The warrant was sworn out before Judge Horace Taylor, of Marlboro.

STOCK BEARS' PROBE CURBS PRICE SLUMP

essential to a free market. The exchange has made it clear, however, that it will not tolerate bear "raids" designed to depress prices artificially.

The 1929 questionnaire, dated November 13, was recalled ten days later. The current demand for information was the first general circular of its kind sent to members since that time.

It directed members to furnish:

"1. A list of all stocks borrowed and for whose account.

"2. A list of all stock loaned and to whom.

"3. Intraoffice borrowings and for whose account.

"4. A list of all stocks which you (the member) have failed to deliver and for whose account."

Replies must be filed later this week and subsequent reports of the changes in members' accounts caused by each day's business must be submitted daily thereafter, presumably until further notice.

Although there was no official comment on the questionnaire, Wall street took it for granted that the powerful business conduct committee was seeking to check up on possible unethical short selling in a stock market, which has been declining almost steadily since February, sending prices back to 1926 levels.

It has long been reported that a small but strongly intrenched group of professional operators was still bearish, although more recently it was said at least one of them had withdrawn, satisfied that little more was to be gained on the short side.

U. S. TO SAY RUM RING OWNED SHIP I'M ALONE

lacks substance unless it can be proved the vessel's owners were Canadians. On this point they bring forward a decision of Sir William Scott, judge of a British prize court during the War of 1812, who ruled the ship Fortuna was a lawful forfeit because, although she flew the Portuguese flag, she actually belonged to an enemy country, the United States. This case is cited to show that ownership, rather than registry, is the final determinant of a ship's nationality.

American officials are prepared to offer evidence that the Danny Hogan bootleg ring, operating from New York, owned the I'm Alone. This evidence shows that Hogan was in frequent telephonic communication with George Hearn, a Canadian, who bought the Eugene Creaser Co. in November, 1928, for $100. At about the same time, the evidence also indicates, Hearn bought the I'm Alone from a Canadian sea captain, paying $18,500 for it, of which he kept $500 as a commission.

State Department officials are convinced, on the basis of this and other evidence not revealed, that Hearn acted as Hogan's agent in buying the ship and that the I'm Alone was directed by the Hogan ring.

Hogan and Hearn were said to have been "buddies" in the Dwyer bootleg ring in earlier days.

If Canadian officials accept the American contention, officials believe the I'm Alone case—perhaps the most sensational one to arise from this country's efforts to keep out foreign liquor—will be quietly closed. The State Department already has expressed regret that the Coast Guard found it necessary to fire on a ship flying the Canadian flag, thus disposing of the "courtesy" angle of the incident, so that only the pecuniary element remains unsettled, it was said.

The latest United States note will be handed to the Canadian department of external affairs through Hanford MacNider, American Minister at Ottawa, the State Department said. It will be referred ultimately to J. E. Read, Canadian agent in the case.

KIRKLAND CONVICTED OF ASSAULT CHARGE

ward rush of spectators prevented him. Judge Crumpacker, however, went through the usual procedure of asking "gentlemen, is this your verdict?" the jurors nodded.

Legal authority reached by the United Press in an attempt to untangle the unique legal morass, said that a jury is supposed to reach a decision on the basis of evidence presented.

"If the jurors' verdict was 'assault with intent to commit a criminal attack,'" said the legal authority, "the defense should have a strong case before the judge tomorrow."

It was the second time that a jury had been confused by the charges. The first jury convicted Kirkland of killing his sweetheart "by beating on the head with firsts," a compromise verdict to obtain a life sentence. Judge Crumpacker held later in granting a retrial that this verdict was not possible under the evidence submitted.

Judge Crumpacker ordered the courtroom cleared. Kirkland kissed his mother, embraced his father, and was led in tears, back to the jail.

A mysterious tip that one of the male members of Miss Draves' family had purchased a gun with intent to assassinate Kirkland, caused a deputy sheriff to search the dead girl's two brothers and her father. They were unarmed.

Sheriff Birney Maxwell then gave an added exciting fillip to the case when he arrested Ronald Oldham, chief of Kirkland's counsel, on a fraud warrant from Hamilton, Ohio. He was accused of passing a worthless check.

"I had the warrant in my pocket for three weeks," said the sheriff, "but we did not want to take any chances of a mistrial by arresting Oldham sooner."

Prosecutor John Underwood, in a stirring final appeal to the jurors, eight of whom are fathers, demanded that they either send Kirkland to the electric chair or free him. Underwood pointed his finger at the nattily dressed defendant and shouted:

"You compelled Ariene to submit to your wishes."

Underwood turned to the jurors and asked:

CADETS OF CENTRAL HIGH WIN IN DRILL

ered from the shock of defeat, they obeyed the signals of their cheer leaders and joined in the applause. The ceremony was repeated for the second and third companies.

The victorious company then marched in front of the reviewing stand of Army officers, District Commissioners and school officials and members of the Board of Education and, while moving picture cameras clicked, the ribbon was attached to the rifle of Sergt. David Roadley, right guide of Company A, of the First Regiment.

A number of other awards were made. Eastern High School Band, under the leadership of Capt. John H. Dr.vis, adjudged to be the best band in the brigade in a recent competition, received a red ribbon similar to the one given the winning company. The band was trained by Ludwig Manoley, who has charge of all the high school bands and orchestras. This award was made by Commissioner Gen. Herbert B. Crosby.

Van Brunt Honored.

Cadet Sergt. Edmond S. Van Brunt of Western High School, received the noncommissioned officers' medal as the best noncommissioned officer in the brigade. A silver medal was awarded Cadet Sergt. Karl H. Hennige for second place. This contest in which a noncommissioned officer from each school took part was held Monday afternoon.

The Third Corps Area medals were given to the members of the brigade rifle team which recently won first place in a contest of rifle teams conducted throughout the Third Corps Area. Cadet Lieut. Col. John C. Ludlum, of Central, received the gold medal, as the best member of the team, and Ross L. Fryer, also of Central, the silver medal. Eight bronze medals were awarded to other members of the team.

A team from Company C, of McKinley, captained by Lieut. Hugh B. Chapman, that won first place in the cadet war game, received the Gen. Anton Stephan War Game Trophy.

The winning companies and teams celebrated at their respective schools last night with dinners and dances. Central was the scene of the highest festivities.

U. S. SEADROMES TO ALLOW DRINKING, GAMING ON BOARD

the Atlantic coast, on a line with Atlantic City. This will be a try-out seadrome, one to test the ability of the employes and the equipment.

Now this initial floating island, Mr. Armstrong admits, will be of an experimental type. What Mr. Armstrong wants to know is, how will those people who travel take to it. Others want to know, too.

"You say that the first seadrome is going to be 250 miles off Atlantic City; is it going to be wet or dry?" Mr. Armstrong was asked.

Reno's Allure Promised.

"Anything that is reasonable will be allowed," Mr. Armstrong said. "Remember, we will be outside the 12-mile limit. This first seadrome will be off Atlantic City, on the route from New York to Bermuda. If some of the passengers want liquor, we will serve it to them.

"If they want to play poker, well, we can go as far as Reno, Nev., goes."

Charles E. Asnis, an outstanding member of the Philadelphia bar, was asked to make an investigation and determine just what will be the status of the seadromes. On the basis of his report Mr. Armstrong had this to say yesterday:

"The seadromes would be subject to American protection in case of need, just as any American private property in the Sahara Desert or elsewhere would be subject to that protection. But neither State nor Federal American laws nor those of any other nation would be applicable on the structures (the seadromes) as long as their operations are 'free from practices which would shock the conscience of mankind.'"

Hotel to Be on Each Isle.

On each of the floating islands of steel will be located a hotel with accommodations for about 400 persons.

Taking off in a transatlantic plane, a New York business man might be in a hurry. In that case, so Mr. Armstrong says, he could board a good, fast plane, could stop at all eight seadromes to refuel and could cross the ocean in 24 hours.

If the business man so desires, Mr. Armstrong says, he could make arrangements to meet his French conferee, say, on a floating island, or seadrome, in the middle of the ocean. Then both the American business man and the French business man could reach that spot in the ocean in twelve hours. Also they could get home twelve hours after their conference, according to Mr. Armstrong.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the first man to fly from New York to Paris, had this to say about passenger travel across the Atlantic:

"In my opinion future Atlantic crossing will be made as long as runs on railroads are made today. In other words, these will be floating islands where planes may land, reship their mail, cargo and passengers into a fresh plane with a new pilot, who will take off for the next point."

Other Aviators Concur.

Not only Col. Lindbergh, but Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and a score of other noted fliers admit that there must be floating islands across the Atlantic before a start in transatlantic passenger service can be made.

Mr. Armstrong assured everybody at the press conference yesterday that there was to be no popular stock-selling campaign; that there was to be no popular subscription. There was no idea of rooking in unsuspecting widows, he said.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Armstrong said, most of the stock would be taken up by the Du Ponts and by other men able to hold their own in a financial way.

"It is a gamble in a way," he said. "We don't want any people in it who are likely to suffer. Don't think that this is pessimism. It isn't. The point we want to make is that we only want people in this who are willing to gamble on our foresight. Others we would advise to stay out."

At the outset, Mr. Armstrong says, the cost of flying across the ocean via the seadromes will be about $500. However, he says, once air travel across the ocean is built up, this fare should be reduced to a minimum of $150 one way. This sum would be on a par or below the steamship fare.

What brought Mr. Armstrong and his assistant, F. L. Curtis, here more than anything else was to protest against the plan of the Postoffice Department to make Charleston, S. C., the principal port of entry for trans-Atlantic mail transported by air.

Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Curtis take the position that the designation of this city is silly; that New York must inevitably be regarded as the terminal for passenger and mail traffic across the ocean.

LABOR TAKES HAND AS FIELD SERVICE CLERKS CITE ABUSES

There are more Government employes outside of Washington than in Washington. We are not fighting for a favored few thousands who are working and living in a beautiful city. The country has been given an entirely false impression about the Government service. In some places the employment conditions are little short of barbaric and are a shame and a reflection on the Government."

Miss McNally cited the airways service, operated under direction of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, as an example of the inhuman conditions of employment—considered from the modern and American standpoint of employment and pay.

Employes in this service are required to work not less than 12 hours a day every day in the week. In some cases the work day runs to 18 hours a day. The Saturday half-holiday law is a joke to these employes, Miss McNally said. Employes have been given veiled and sometimes open threats to keep between their teeth whatever complaints they may have about conditions, Miss McNally charged.

Employes in the field service of the Veterans Bureau are required to work 12 and more hours a day and the Saturday half-holiday has meant no relief to them because of the Budget Bureau order.

Not only has the Veterans Bureau, of which Gen. Frank T. Hines is director, failed to observe the half-holiday law, but the bureau has further restricted its employes, Miss McNally said. Formerly employes who worked when they should have been free were, under bureau regulations, plainly entitled to extra time off later. These regulations recently were amended so that they shall get compensatory time off "when practicable" and the person who ordered them to extra duty is the one who shall determine whether it is "practicable" to give them extra time off in compensation.

So far have bureau or office chiefs in the field service gone that at least one Government department here is investigating charges that the head of a bureau of the Treasury in California baldly falsified his legal reports to the department to show that the law is being observed when the contrary is true.

In other departments employes are being required to work overtime on other days to make up for the Saturday half-holiday, which Comptroller General McCarl declared was the mandatory declaration of Congress and the law of the land beyond the cavil of department or bureau or office heads.

It is on this decision of Mr. McCarl that the employes intend to base their fight. The law, they declare, is plain enough, but that law has been interpreted in simple language by the comptroller general, who was set up by Congress to interpret the law.

TEST PLANE FALLS, KILLING 4 OF CREW

Two Famous Pilots Die in Crash of Blue Streak Near Chicago.

Chicago, May 26 (A.P.).—The Blue Streak, a giant tandem-motored tailless airplane owned by the Chicago Daily News, fell into a field north of Wheaton, Ill., today, killing four members of its crew.

The dead:

Shirley J. Short, chief pilot, former air mail pilot and winner of the 1926 Harmon International Trophy for safe flying.

Richard K. Peck, copilot and former member of two scientific air expeditions to New Guinea.

Lewis S. Rice, radio operator and technician for Station WMAQ.

Mechanic in War.

Robert Gormley, mechanic, formerly in Government service on the Mexican border and in the World War.

Mr. Gormley was alive when taken from the wreckage but he never regained consciousness. He died en route to a hospital. Bodies of the other three were mangled.

The Blue Streak was making a combination speed-endurance flight under supervision of the National Aeronautical Association over a measured course. The big plane, carrying a load of 2,000 kilograms, had enough fuel to travel 2,000 kilometers.

Test for Craft.

The flight was also to test the endurance of the peculiar ship. Mr. Short, who helped design the plane at the Bellanca factory in Wilmington, Del., had hoped to take it on an oceanic voyage.

The ship was a sesquiplane. One motor in front of the cabin pulled the ship and another directly behind pushed. It had no tail of the usual type, but merely a rudder and stabilizer.

From the description of the crash given by motorists and farmers, aviators at first believed Mr. Short was attempting a forced landing when a wing fell off.

Rudder Pieces Scattered.

Pieces of the rudder were found a half-mile from the scene of the crash, leading to a later theory that weakness in the hind structure may have caused the accident.

Mr. Short was a flight instructor at Barron Field, Tex., during the war. Afterward he appeared in a flying circus. In 1923 he became an air mail pilot, and by the close of 1926 he had flown 2,169 hours in the Government service, about half of them at night, and had not had a single serious accident.

On March 6, 1927, he received from President Coolidge the Harmon International trophy for having been the pilot who did the most during the previous year to demonstrate the reliability of airplanes.

Dr. E. W. Brandes, of 3404 Fulton street northwest, principal pathologist in charge of sugar plant investigations of the Department of Agriculture, last night informed The Washington Post that Richard R. Peck, one of the four victims of the Blue Streak crash, was pilot of the plane which transported Dr. Brandes and his party on an expedition in 1928 into primeval New Guinea.

Dr. Brandes added that Mr. Peck was also pilot and motion picture photographer of the expedition up the Mambaramba River, Dutch New Guinea, in 1926-27, led by Dr. Matthew Sterling, chief of the Bureau of American Ethnology, of the Smithsonian Institution.

FOUR AIRMEN WHO MET DEATH

GRANITE MEMORIAL UNVEILED TO MEN VICTIMS OF TITANTIC

son, who presided; Representative Robert Luce, of Massachusetts, chairman of the House committee on the Library, who delivered the sole address, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, who opened the program by introducing Secretary Stimson.

Illness prevented the attendance of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who sculptured the memorial, and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, chairman of the Woman's Titanic Memorial Association. In the latter's place Mrs. Richard Wainwright, head of its executive committee, tendered the statue to the people of the Nation. Two red and white floral wreaths were laid at the base on behalf of the association by its present secretary, Mrs. Robert S. Chew. Invocation was by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, with benediction said by Rabbi Abram Simon. Patriotic selections were rendered by the Marine Band, under Capt. Taylor Branson, taps by one of its buglers concluding the ceremonies.

Eulogizing the Titanic heroes, Representative Luce in his address recalled that of the 2,223 persons aboard, 1,517 lost their lives and 706 were saved. Of the 1,692 men aboard, only 20 per cent were saved; of the 531 women and children, 70 per cent. He added: "The cause of this difference in the proportion saved is the reason for this memorial and our presence here.

"True it is that among the Titanic victims were men of high repute, leaders in the world's activities, some of great wealth, others of great power, others known for genius or skill. Yet this alone does not explain our presence here. Such men come to their end in numbers every day.

"It was the ancient rule of the sea, 'Women and children first,' when the boats were to be filled. With no hesitation, no demur, men to whom life was as precious as to you or to me accepted the likelihood of speedy death. All the vain distinction of class and creed and race were forgotten. Magnate and deckhand, millionaire and stoker, railway executive and steward, capitalist and cabin boy alike conquered the primitive instinct to fight for life and joined in sacrifice.

"In our day, however, the spheres of men and women have been so largely merged that it may well be wondered whether the true values of chivalry are not doomed to disappear. Since the upheaval of social relations and the destruction of standards by the World War, the fear of that grows. If it comes, it will have to be set down as one of the great losses brought by the new conceptions of life and its duties. Sorry, indeed, will be the day, if it ever comes, when men cease to make home and wife and children, the chief object of their toil, the very center of their dreams, their hopes, their ambitions. When, if ever, self-interest and self-preservation become the mainspring of masculine existence, then will come the death of civilization.

"Insofar as the sacrifice of the men we here commemorate shall have lessened the perils of the sea, they will not have died in vain. Nobler will be their reward if they have helped to teach us how to live and how to die."

HOTEL ASKS HIGHER BOND OF PLAINTIFFS

Mayflower Company Seeks $500,000 Guarantee in Receivership Case.

The Mayflower Hotel Co. yesterday fought back at the five men who last Friday succeeded in having temporary receivers appointed to take over the hotel and scrutinize its books and records. Through Attorneys William E. Leahy, Edmund D. Toland and William J. Hughes, jr., the company asked that each of the five be required to post bonds of $100,000 to guarantee to the company the payment of any losses that may be sustained through the possible improvident appointment of the receivers.

The five plaintiffs, Ernest C. Mulvey, North Attleboro, Mass.; John D. Colgan, New York City; George R. Ellis, North Attleboro, Mass.; Franklin F. Noyes, Waterville, Me., and G. Wallace Tibbetts, Boston, Mass., had been required to post a joint bond of only $2,000 when they filed their suit. The receivers, Joshua Evans, jr., and Tomas P. Littlepage, had posted bond of $100,000.

The company says in its petition that without waiving its motion to vacate the granting of the receivership, which it is preparing to file, it insists upon its rights and asks the increased bonds to cover the hotel on losses from having been wrongfully enjoined. The request points out that the hotel property is valued at many millions of dollars and that a bond of $2,000 is obviously inadequate to protect it from harm.

Indictment Charges Housebreaking to Two

An indictment charging Charles E. Smith and Francis D. Carman with housebreaking and larceny was returned by the District grand jury yesterday.

According to the police both were caught in a gasoline filling station at 2100 Pennsylvania avenue northwest on May 15 in the early morning when a resident of the neighborhood heard the sounds they were making in the station. She telephoned police and both were arrested. A hole had been cut in the bottom of the safe and several hundred dollars had been strewn about the floor.

ELECTRIC RATE-CUT FOES ARE WAGING LOSING FIGHT

countant of the commission, was called back to the stand and questioned at length by both Mr. Roberts and Mr. Keech. He estimated that the return of the power company this year, on the basis of reports for the first four months, will be 10.48 per cent, or approximately the same as last year despite the lower rates.

Under questioning by Mr. Keech he stated that the power company has added $11,740,847.30 to its surplus during the six years the consent decree has been in effect. The aggregate of this fund on December 31, 1930, was $15,932,210.34.

During this same period the total excess earnings of the company, above 7½ per cent, amounted to $6,425,454.47, he said. Half of each year's contribution to this fund has been reflected in the succeeding year's consumer's rates.

Several futile attempts were made by Mr. Bowen to introduce as evidence a statement made by William F. Ham, president of the power company, at the public hearing on rates December 30, 1930. Each time objections of the commission counsel were upheld. Likewise an exhibit which he sought to place on the record as indicative of the yearly reduction in rates under the consent decree was cut considerably before finally being admitted.

At the opening of the morning session the commission heard statements from a dozen civic representatives and business men. In every instance save one the delegates expressed themselves as pleased with the present rates and the results of the consent decree. They admitted, however, that if lower rates could be achieved without upsetting the system, the move would meet with their approval.

Harry King, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed fear that the commission was trying to usurp legal powers invested in the courts. He said that any reduction in rates should be achieved by mutual consent of the utilities body and the power company.

William John Eynon, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Board of Trade, read a resolution, adopted by the organization last January, which opposed any effort to change the consent decree. Representatives of the electrical trade were also heard in opposition to any change in the present rate basis.

A Maryland delegation appeared as objectors to abrogation of the consent decree for fear that it would result in increasing the electric rates for nearby residents. Commission officials, however, contend that such will not be the case even though the District body has no control over the fixing of these rates.

Included in this delegation were J. Bond Smith, of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, and Louis B. Arnold, of the Chillum Democratic Club of Prince Georges County.

Trio in York Case Given Death Stay

Attorneys Win More Time to Perfect Move to Save Men From Chair.

The three Negro slayers of Prohibition Agent Lamar Watson York were given stays of execution until September 2 yesterday when their attorneys notified Justice Jesse Adkins that they desired more time in which to perfect further moves to save the trio from capital punishment.

The three, John Borum, John Logan and Milton Guy, stand convicted of shooting York on April 11, 1930, when he seized an automobile that contained liquor. When he refused to "deal" with them, one of the trio shot and killed him. Each signed statements blaming the others for the actual shooting.

Attorneys James A. O'Shea, John H. Burnett and Bertrand Emerson appeared for the men. Their move for a stay of execution, set for June 9, was not opposed by the Government.

ENJOY FINE-CAR PERFORMANCE AT A REDUCED COST WITH THE NEW OAKLAND EIGHT . . . .
an outstanding General Motors value
To our list of Oakland owners this year have come many motorists who have driven other cars—some higher in price—some lower—some about the same. Their comments:
Said a man who had paid more: "I'm getting the kind of performance I've always insisted on. The motor does everything so easily. I find a feature I've enjoyed in my former cars—the Syncro-Mesh. It certainly simplifies gear-shifting. And I wouldn't have believed a car at such a reasonable price could be so well finished. No two ways about it—my Oakland is a good investment."
Said a man who formerly drove a cheap car: "Oakland gives me an entirely different kind of ride. For one thing, I feel as if a few dollars had smoothed away most of the bumps in the road!" (That comfort is due, partially, to deep springs, 4 shock absorbers, soft seat cushions, and rubber insulation at 41 points in the chassis.) "I'm even more pleased with Oakland's pick-up and speed. Talk about hills—this car doesn't ask for a running start. It walks right up, and that's what I call power!"
Said a man who had previously paid about the same price: "Oakland introduced me to motor car distinction that I thought was reserved for people with more money to spend. The Fisher body is a big advantage—seems so carefully built—sounds solid when you slam the doors, and shuts out heat and cold. The upholstery is my idea of real value, too. As for good looks, and a car you can be proud of, just ask my wife and daughter!"
Typical comments, these. We hear lots of them. But of course you have your own ideas. So, drive the car—give it a thorough test—just call any Oakland-Pontiac dealer.

DISTRICT FLAG IDEA BRINGS OUT DESIGNS

Many Fine Suggestions Are Being Submitted Daily to Judges' Group.

Many congratulatory letters are being received commending The Washington Post for conducting a contest in an effort to secure an appropriate design for a flag for the District of Columbia. The District has been treated like the proverbial "red-headed stepchild" in never having had an emblem adopted for it and it is hoped that one of the many very excellent suggestions being received will be adopted by the judges and by act of Congress be officially made the flag for Washington.

A flag with a picture of George Washington seems to be the favored design at the present time. Quoting from a letter from W. A. Lyons which accompanied a design bearing the picture of George Washington: "In reference to the Capitol dome or the Monument on the flag, it would indicate a national design meaning the flag either belonged to the Capitol Building or the Monument as indicated thereon, instead of a flag for the entire city. Other cities do not have Federal buildings on their flags so why should we just because we have many of them?"

The Capitol dome, however, is still among the favored designs. Miss Catherine C. Hodge has submitted a very excellent suggestion, combining a heart and the Capitol dome. Her analysis of the pattern is as follows: "The heart—the very life—of the American people, beats valiantly beneath the dome of the Capitol * * * truly a monument to the greatness of the American Government. Just so is the Capital City like the building, the heart of the American people."

So—come on, every proud resident of Washington and send in a drawing showing what you would like to have for an emblem of your own city. Another reason for competing is that there is a $25 prize offered for the best, most appropriate design submitted, the one selected by the judges.

OFFERED IN FLAG CONTEST

Another design in The Post's contest to secure a flag for the District of Columbia. This one, submitted by J. J. Maffei, 401 Michigan avenue northeast, would have a field of blue, red rays to represent the thirteen original States and a blue and white figure.

City Heads to Hear Sign Regulations

Arguments For and Against Adoption to Be Given Consideration.

Arguments for and against the proposals of the special sign committee will be heard at 10 o'clock this morning by the District Commissioners in the board room of the District Building. Twenty-three proposals for regulations, in accordance with the act of Congress at its last session, will be considered.

Among the organizations which have been invited to be represented at the hearing are the Board of Trade, the Washington Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, the Washington Real Estate Board, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Federation of Citizens Associations and all outdoor advertising agencies.

The proposed rules, intended to limit outdoor advertising in the District, were compiled by a committee composed of Maj. D. A. Davison, chairman; Col. John W. Oehmann, R. M. Brennan, E. W. Thomas and Capt. L. H. Edwards.

Church, Lodge Carnival Launched to Aid Youths

A two-weeks' carnival under auspices of the junior activities committees of St. Augustine's Church and Columbia Lodge of colored Elks, as a benefit for camps and recreational facilities for colored youth, began last night on Columbia lodge grounds at Third and Rhode Island avenue northwest. The committee proposes to create a camp as a means of elimination of juvenile delinquency.

The carnival will aim to develop proceeds sufficient to promote education in indoor and outdoor activities for physical and mental and moral development of camp and club members.

Philadelphia, May 26 (A.P.).—The battleship Pennsylvania, recently modernized at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, returned to the yard today from a month's shakedown cruise in the West Indies to undergo repairs for a broken propeller blade.

The propeller was broken when the ship struck a submerged object in Southern waters.

Song Publishers Scored by Judge

Sheet Salesman May Get Probation, Despite Their Opposition.

Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday ordered Joe D'Agostino, indicted for violation of the copyright laws that involved the sale of song sheets on the streets, released in the custody of his attorney, and the case referred to the probation officer for investigation.

Justice Gordon's ire was aroused when the announcement was made that "the song publishers did not want the man placed on probation." "Well, between you and me, those publishers have nothing to do with this court," Justice Gordon replied. He thereupon took steps to have D'Agostino placed on probation.

The alleged vender has already served fifteen days in jail. His case was taken up in Police Court by Assistant United States Attorney Michael Keogh, and when the case was in Judge Ralph Given, in a memorandum opinion, said he believed his court did not have jurisdiction. D'Agostino was taken into the District Supreme Court, where he entered a plea of guilty. He will come up for sentence Friday. Attorney Charles H. Baker represented D'Agostino.

Dictator Resumes Control in Poland

Pilsudski's Return Signal for Retirement of Premier-Aid.

Warsaw, May 26 (A.P.).—Premier Walery Slawek tonight presented the resignation of the Polish cabinet to President Moscicki. This is considered to be the result of the recent return of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski to Poland after spending the winter in Madeira.

The resignation caused no surprise in Warsaw, which has grown accustomed to frequent changes of government. The cabinet was formed December 4, 1930, under Col. Slawek with the tacit understanding that it was to funciton during the absence of Marshal Pilsudski, the dictator, in Madeira. Marshal Pilsudski nominaly held the post of the minister of war in the Slawek cabinet.

Col. Alexander Prystor, minister of industry and commerce, a faithful Pilsudski follewer, is considered the likeliest candidate to form a new cabinet.

AGENT SUSPENDED IN PROFANITY CASE

Virginian Convicted of Using Abusive Language to Misses Calvert.

Richmond, Va., May 26 (A.P.).—Convicted of using profane language in the presence of Misses Margaret and Eleanor Calvert, debutante daughters of George W. Calvert, jr., Washington attorney, J. Warren Davis, State prohibition inspector, was suspended from his duties today.

Davis appealed from the court decision, carrying a $5 fine, given in Charlottesville by a court of three magistrates: Sam R. Baker, of Montgomery, Ala., president-elect of the University of Virginia Law School, also appealed from the $10 fine imposed on him for traffic-law violation.

Charges brought by the student against J. Aldin Smith, State motor vehicle officer, were dismissed, but T. McCall Frazier, director of the division of motor vehicles, who suspended the traffic officer when the charges were made, said Smith would not be reinstated until a report had been received from a representative of the division who attended the trial in Charlottesville today.

In announcing that he had wired to Davis, suspending him "until further advised," Attorney General Saunders said he had been advised of the officer's conviction "for using abusive and profane language in the presence of ladies. Such being the result of this trial, I shall suspend Mr. Davis, as I do not want any officer in this department who would be guilty of such conduct."

The trials of Baker and the officers, which began on Friday and were concluded today, grew out of arrest of the student, together with Misses Calvert and Thomas Dew, of Fredericksburg, Va., another law student, while they were driving near Charlottesville on the night of May 16. Baker was arrested on a charge of passing the officers' car on a curve and of resisting arrest. The latter charge was dismissed today.

In counter accusations brought by the students, Davis was charged with unlawful search and use of profane and abusive language, and Smith was accused of unlawful assault and use of profanity. Only the charge of using profanity against Davis was sustained today.

At the trial the students and their girl companions all testified that Baker had been roughly dragged from the car and that the officers had been abusive in manner and language. The officers denied this and said that Baker was arrested for driving recklessly.

Will Rogers' Polo Brings Him Hurts

Another Bone Broken by Fall; Ankle Now in Tape; Enthusiasm Blamed.

Hollywood, Calif., May 26 (A.P.).—By broken bones Will Rogers is measuring his progress in polo. He fell off his horse Sunday and broke a small bone in his right ankle. A month ago he broke a bone in his hand in another fall.

On each occasion he played out the game. His hand was out of a cast only a few days before he hurt his ankle. Now his ankle is in tape, but that doesn't prevent him from walking.

It isn't his horsemanship, which is excellent, but his enthusiasm for the game that is getting the humorist in trouble. On the field he rides like mad, and when he parts company with the saddle there is nothing half-hearted about it.

A typical picture of Rogers on the polo field is a white-suited demon with a shock of gray hair charging down the field with the ball, while a horde of opposition players attempts to ride him off.

Queen Helen Is Denied Special Traffic Signals

Bucharest, Roumania, May 26 (A.P.).—Traffic police were instructed today not to signal the approach of Queen Helen's automobile or carriage at street intersections. Heretofore all other traffic was stopped at the approach of her royal vehicle.

The newspaper Patria said yesterday that a decree expelling the queen from the royal family was being drafted for presentation to the new Parliament.

TAX CHANGES CAN WAI

In response to Secretary Mello. s address on the defects of the national tax system members of Congress are coming forth with all varieties of new taxes to impose upon the people. Discussion of a Federal gasoline tax is heard. Senator Couzens puts on display his gift tax and estate tax, all finished off with a new coat of varnish. Senator Borah, stalwart guardian of the farmer, grows eloquent in demanding that present exemptions for small incomes be maintained; while S nator Hull is content to point out the horrors of deficits and to lament the fact that the Treasury did not tap the fat profits of corporations in 1929.

It is very evident that the administration is in doubt as to what is the best policy to pursue. The addresses of both Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills were pregnant with suggestions, but void of conclusions. Apparently the administration is not ready to rush headlong into new tax legislation for the sake of correcting a temporary deficit in the Federal budget. Its temperance and wisdom in this respect are deserving of high commendation.

No tax system can be evolved that will produce an annual revenue precisely matching each year's expenditures. It is inevitable that the Government's income should fluctuate in somewhat the same proportion as do the earnings of the Nation. The best that can be expected is a general balancing of expenditures and revenue over a period of years.

Regarded from this angle the situation in which the United States now finds itself is not nearly so bad as calamity-howling politicians would have the people believe. In the last decade taxes have been repeatedly reduced, yet revenue mounted higher with increasing prosperity. Enormous surpluses were piled up for several years. Under ordinary circumstances these funds would have been available to tide the Government over a rainy day. But they were not reserved for that purpose. All surplus funds, in addition to the regular sinking fund established by law, have been used to reduce the public debt.

The trimming of nearly $1,000,000,000 per year from the public debt has, of course, been a wise policy. Interest charges have been cut down and large sums saved for taxpayers. In reality, the Government has invested its surplus funds in debt reduction. Now some of those funds are needed to offset the heavy expenditures and smaller receipts of an abnormal year. In view of the remarkable encroachment upon the national indebtedness in the last decade there seems to be no reason why the Government should hesitate to bridge over the present shortage with the past surplus.

It is a mistake to suppose that the present embarrassment of the Treasury is due wholly to declining revenue. The drop in customs receipts and income taxes accounts for less than half of the deficit. The remainder can be traced to congressional extravagance, including the enactment of the veterans' loan bill, which will cost at least $1,000,000,000. Politicians are now clamoring for higher taxes that will not affect their own constituents, so that they may indulge in a new orgy of spending when Congress reassembles. Their socialistic and paternalistic schemes and their quack remedies for the depression will amount to nothing unless backed by millions from the Federal Treasury.

President Hoover is making every effort to reduce expenditures of the executive departments. If congressional expenditures can be held within reason there may be no need for an increase in taxes. The present system produced large surpluses under normal conditions, and it can be expected to meet all the requirements of the Government when the depression has lifted. Because of the unfavorable reaction that higher taxes would have upon the whole business and industrial structure, the administration can be expected to delay any move in that direction until every other means of handling the situation has been exhausted.

It is unfortunate that the Government finds it necessary to consume any of the fat it accumulated during the recent prosperous years. But in view of the nominal interest rates at which money can be obtained; in view of the certain return of better economic conditions, and of the adverse effect that increased taxes would have, the demands for additional levies at this time seem to be quite out of order.

WHEAT CONFERENCE FIASCO.

It is unfortunate that the United States sent delegates to the world wheat conference in London last week. Failure of the conference to decide upon any remedy for the overproduction of wheat was a virtual certainty before the delegates assembled. A definite decision that the United States would not participate in an international marketing agreement was apparently reached before the delegates left Washington. There was no chance of accomplishing anything for the benefit of American farmers. Why did this Government take part in a venture that was foredoomed to failure?

The only result of Mr. McKelvie's visit to London has been to throw the blame for wrecking the conference upon the United States. As a matter of fact, no agreement was possible, because Soviet Russia is determined to expand its grain acreage and sell its crops at cut prices. But the Soviet delegation withheld all information as to its position until the United States and other countries had spoken. Then the spokesman for Moscow pretended to agree to a limitation of exports, providing Russia would be allowed to expand its output to more than twice as much as any other country.

The red press of Moscow is trying to shift the full responsibility for failure of the gathering to the United States, and some Europeans are deceived by the propaganda. American wheat is not, of course, a menace to the world market. The Farm Board has given assurance that its surplus will be disposed of in an orderly manner, and the board is making every effort to take the United States out of the wheat exporting field. Since wheat for the world market can not be grown at a profit in this country it is probable that exports will steadily decline. Every effort here is to curtail acreage and raise the price of wheat to a point where its production will be profitable. In Russia the situation is just the reverse. The dictatorship is determined to increase wheat production and to dump a large share of it on the world market at any price that is necessary to undersell other wheat.

About the only achievement with which this conference can be accredited is the enhancement of Soviet duplicity. It is unfortunate that this Government allowed itself to be used in such a manner.

KEEP PUBLIC WATERS CLEAN.

The recent decision of the Supreme Court will stop New York City's practice of dumping its garbage in the sea, to be washed back to pollute the waters and strew the beaches of New Jersey and Long Island with refuse. This is a big step in the right direction, and should awaken States and municipalities in many sections to the necessity for voluntary action.

The dangers to health at bathing resorts and the unsightliness of garbage on the beaches are but a fraction of the evils caused by the pollution of waters on a large scale by cities and to a lesser degree by many private sources. Streams and harbors, much more frequently than the ocean itself, as in the case of New York, are so contaminated that they constitute a real menace to health.

The coastal shellfish industry is threatened with extinction if present conditions are not remedied. Valuable oyster beds are being ruined for all time. Lobster, clam and shrimp supplies are being curtailed and contaminated by the noxious wastes that are dumped into streams. Many haunts of wild fowl, too, are destroyed by the increasing volume of oil, chemical and refuse matter that is allowed to flow into public waterways.

Modern science has provided the remedy for this condition, which eventually will eliminate all cost of its correction. Incinerating plants can now be constructed which recover many valuable products from city garbage. Twenty years ago the question of a Federal law to control factory wastes was proposed in Congress, but no action was taken for lack of complete information.

The need of legislation is certainly much greater today. The initiative probably must come from city governments which, as a rule, will be obliged to build disposal plants when private capital does not provide facilities on a basis of municipal pay and recovery profits. The Supreme Court decision and the soil pollution act show that there need be no lack of legal authority for ample protection of all waters for the benefit of the public.

LONDON WAITS ON GANDHI.

It seems that Mahatma Gandhi meant what he said when he announced some time ago that he would not go to London for the conferences on India unless the terms of his agreement with Lord Fisher at Delhi were carried out and the Hindu-Moslem communal question settled. Now that it is time for this little man of magical power to set sail he reaffirms his determination to see his two demands fulfilled. This probably means that the meetings of the federal arrangements committee as well as the round table sessions will have to be postponed.

Meanwhile British officials, British India and the Indian native states are all debating the plans for representation of the various elements of India in a federal government. It is a comparatively simple problem for that great portion of India that is under British rule, which comprises fifteen provinces with an area of more than a million square miles. British India has a population of nearly 250,000,000, who are represented at Delhi by the legislative assembly.

The native states also have a Delhi assembly called the Chamber of Princes, a very formal body of small importance. If a new constitution is adopted the princely chamber, naturally, will be merged into a general legislative assembly. The difficulty is to arrange representation from the native states. With a population of over 70,000,000 scattered throughout 700,000 square miles, there are more than 600 separate native states.

Most of the princely rulers are independent dictators in their own realms and jealous of their rights. They maintain armies and have power of life and death over their subjects. Attempts are being made in advance of the new constitutional assembly projected to determine qualifications that will be required for membership. The desire is that a democratic organization of some form be the basis, even though in many cases the state assembly would be merely a form. However, the princes are being advised to establish the machinery of constitutional government, such as would satisfy by appearances, at least, the requirements of a federation. Many states already have a popular assembly and rule of law with independent judges, a civil list and a regular system of taxes. Such fundamentals of government, it is felt, must be introduced in all the native states of India if they are to become actual participants in a general assembly under the new constitution.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has found that America's liquor bill amounted to $2,848,000,000 in 1929. Excellent work! Now let the association supply the Prohibition Bureau with the addresses of all stills and their operating capacity.

It would be interesting to know if the proposal for a French academy of wine has been inspired by the American academy of bootleggers.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 26.—Some of the younger generation the world over are complaining because they have to bear the obligations coming to them from the past. They assert that as they did not create such obligations they ought not to have to discharge them. They apply this reasoning particularly to conditions arising out of the war.

It would be wonderful if we could be relieved of all the mistakes and debts and enjoy only the wisdom and property of the past. Unfortunately that is impossible. We have to take the world as it is. The liabilities can not be separated from the assets. If the new generation enjoys the advantages of the scholarship, inventions and accumulations of past ages it can not successfully repudiate the charges with which the inheritance is burdened.

No possibility exists of restoring the world from the ravages of war except by a long, hard, laborious process. Any concerted effort to seek a remedy in any other direction would result only in destroying the great values which now exist. There is no salvation in repudiation or confiscation. All past experience indicates that the youth of the world ultimately will recognize this and have the courage and character to provide the necessary reconstruction.

LIVING IN BLOCS

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

American individualism has been a magic phrase since before the founding of this nation. It has been used to glorify the phenomenal growth of industry in America and to justify the failure of cities and States to govern themselves more efficiently. Rightly interpreted, this dominant current of individualism probably explains much that is good and much that is bad in American life.

It seems likely, however, that American individualism is a product of the economic and social conditions of early America, not a quality inherent in the race or races that populate the country. We may therefore expect that individualism to be replaced by something else whenever the pressure of new economic forces becomes strong enough.

Many signs point to the breakdown of that rigid individualism. Powers of government over private persons are greater each year. Powers of labor unions and employers' associations over their individual members are steadily larger. Organized blocs, often properly called lobbies, exert an even greater power on government, replacing the influence of outstanding individuals.

Even more significant than the growth of group power in politics is the advance of functional blocs in social life. We buy our books very largely in terms of leagues and clubs, trusting to a few advisers to sift out the worth-while. We sponsor the drama through leagues and guilds, acting as groups for a more certain result.

We find our diversion more and more through functional groups, based on allied interests, rather than through the neighborhood. Our children are ever more under the influence of group undertakings—Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., school clubs and so on—rather than the family as an individualist unit.

Implicit in all this is a definite and very significant trend toward living in blocs, rather than as individuals. It is a trend neither to be deplored nor hailed with joy. It is merely a reflection of new conditions of life, larger than any one's ability to control. So far this socialization has been conspicuously absent in industry and in purchasing—the two fields where it has gained most abroad.

For better or worse, we are moving swiftly and inexorably into a new sort of living—a world in which our fathers would not feel at home—a world which will baffle even most of us, but a world which will seem perfectly natural to our children. There is no standing still.

POST HASTE.

Hhe new marshal of the White House is not a military man. On the contrary, his duty will be to prevent warfare over seating arrangements.

The Supreme Court is right. If every man were left to decide whether or not he would enlist his wife might be a long time making up his mind.

To make a new mark some of those stocks will soon have to begin pulling the hole in after them.

By the time the air armada reaches the Capital there will be nothing new for it to do but to see how many can land at one time on the peak of the Washington Monument.

It was an off day for Senator Brookhart. All he did was to supersede the War Policies Commission of senators, representatives and Cabinet members with bills rendering its six months' work unnecessary.

Well, come on, Cuba! You might as well explode or something and get it over with; you can't do any work in that frame of mind.

Those flying Army boys in formation do certainly know their place and keep their distances. But on the ground—ask the girls.

New York is having a lot of trouble about kosher fowls that aren't kosher enough to suit East Side patrons. We miss some troubles. To the third of Washington's population particularly so disposed, chickens is chickens.

Just incidentally, in connection with a police inquiry the other day, it developed that Senator Brookhart had a private snooping organization to help him ferret out the mare's nests he exploits. Of course, not even a member of the ad interim executive committee of Congress could cook up a new one every day all by himself.

The Supreme Court is going to decide the status of speakeasy fixtures. They may soon have to go home to sleep.

Holystoning the decks of Navy vessels has been ordered stopped. It wears them out. How about non-soluble soap for the tars? P. H.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

SLOWSOME AHEAD.

It seems at golf to be my lot,
Whatever time I play,
To get behind the tedious kind
Who daily down the way.
I've never gone around a course
But what I've always said,
"It seems to me there's bound to be
A slowsome just ahead."

And what is strange, it matters not
At all with whom I play.
The other three with me agree;
The selfsame thing they say.
The while we wait for them to quit
The green whereon they tread,
As like as not, they'll say, "We've got
A slowsome just ahead!"

Yet back of us are players, too,
Who no doubt fume and fuss
And curse their fate that they must wait
A space of time for us.
They would go blithely on their way
And let the ball be sped
And well I know they think us slow
Who hold the place ahead.

Oh, youth, who long for wealth and fame,
Perhaps you think the old,
At tedious pace, still block the place
You're eager now to hold;
You think you should be on the green,
But age is there instead;
But this you'll learn, soon comes your turn
To be the man ahead.

Pilate Still Washes His Hands and Delivers Good Men to the Mob.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN 50 men, under cover of darkness, take an accused man from a jail or some place of hiding and kill him without sanction of the law, good citizens everywhere are shamed and horrified.

A mob, they say, is a brutal thing maddened by the lust for blood and wholly incapable of reason.

That is true. But the people are a mob, whether they assemble after dark or remain in their homes.

They condemn an accused man before he is tried; they thirst for vengeance; and the opinions formed of their prejudice can not be altered by any kind of evidence.

When a crime is committed—say, for example, a bank messenger shot down and robbed in broad daylight—numerous suspects of unsavory reputation are arrested and held for questioning.

If one of these is accused and brought to trial, many influences will combine to effect a miscarriage of justice.

If the man can obtain money and employ the right lawyer, he will be released under bond; his trial will be postponed on various pretexts until public interest wanes; perjured witnesses or a stupid jury will follow the well-worn path of infamy, and the man will go free.

The State accepts defeat. It makes no effort to fix the guilt on another man, and thus confesses its belief that justice was cheated.

That is the miscarriage of justice to which our civilization is accustomed and to which, apparently, it is resigned.

But there is another and more dreadful miscarriage.

Suppose the accused man, wholly innocent, has no money and is brought quickly to trial with an inexperienced lawyer to defend him; or suppose the law's agents, without conscious intent to be unjust, find eyewitnesses who think the accused man guilty because he is in jail and therefore are willing to identify him as the robber; or suppose the State's officials, facing an election and eager to satisfy the public's clamor for vengeance and suppression of crime, deliberately "railroad" the accused man to prison.

There are such cases. Investigators have found a sufficient number to reveal the probability of more.

Whose is the fault?

Public prosecutors bear the blame, but they are agents of the people. They satisfy public demand in order to hold their jobs.

They sacrifice innocents because the people are a mob clamoring for vengeance.

And innocent men will suffer so long as court officials are not in fact agents of justice but politicians who must satisfy the people to keep their bread and butter.

Broader Taxation.

Boston Transcript.

Secretary Mellon's masterful review of the Government finances also raises a question of public policy which will not chime in any too well with the plans of some of the politicians for a further raiding of the Federal Treasury. Mr. Mellon shows that as the result of a consistent and unvarying program of debt retirement, the national debt has been cut from about $25,000,000,000 to about $15,000,000,000 since the World War, with a consequent reduction of the interest rate from 4.18 per cent to 3.81; but, with the existence of a deficit, to which he refers as "always a serious matter," he finds Government finance resting upon too narrow a basis for the safety of either the debt-refunding program or that of caring for such temporary decreases in the revenues as will occur from time to time. In other words, while it has been easy, until within a short time, to meet the obligations of the Government with the present levies, they are derived from a relatively small number of persons and corporations who pay the income taxes; a number so small as not to constitute a safe reliance in time of emergency.

Will the Senators Help?

Fargo (N. Dak.) Forum.

If Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, and Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, and other members of Congress who have been talking lately of Federal bureaucracy, will now translate their words into action by backing the program of President Hoover for reorganization of Federal departments, the better placing of them to suit the needs of the times and to facilitate work, the cutting down of personnel, we would see in the offing a real hope of accomplishment in limiting bureaucracy. But will they? Harding, Coolidge and Hoover all tried their hands at reorganization on a more efficient basis. Out of these efforts but little progress has come. Only during the last session was it possible to put through the plan for changing the prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice, notwithstanding it had been admitted by Congress, times without number, that such course was logical.

Depression Remedies.

New York Herald Tribune.

Two remedies have been widely proposed in recent weeks for the present depression. One is some new invention like the automobile, which might turn unemployed capital and labor into new channels; the other is cheapened costs of distribution and of doing business, which would increase the effective buying power of the public. If either of these is even partly true it is evident that one key to renewed prosperity is in the hands of research men, for it is through study of the facts of science that most of the inventions and most of the economies are achieved. Are research men being used as they should be? Obviously not.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Drink Bill Estimate of $3,000,000,000 Regarded as "Tipsy" by Correspondent, Who Analyzes the Figures.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the crusaders against the eighteenth amendment keep on arguing, their statistics get wetter and wetter. Their latest piece of synthetic news is that the booze bill of the American people is now $3,000,000,000 a year.

The Antisaloon League calls this estimate "wild speculation." To me it sounds positively tipsy.

Trying to fix the amount of intoxicating liquor consumed is simply guesswork, and my guess is that there are not a tenth as many occasional drinkers in the United States today as there were formerly.

The steady drinkers in respectable neighborhoods are not numerous enough to be worth counting. And this takes in the great bulk of our population.

The steady drinking which furnishes a solid foundation for bootlegging and for which a big round sum is undoubtedly paid, is limited to the irresponsible class of citizens from whom the lawless element of city population is to a great extent recruited.

There may be 2,000,000 alcoholics in the United States who from day to day habitually break the prohibition law, but I very much doubt it. If there are that many, they must, according to the $3,000,000,000 estimate, pay more than $1,000 each for their yearly booze. This average would be excessive, and I can not believe that the general public is drinking $3,000,000,000 worth of gin and whisky a year for the reason that the result in street drunkenness and midnight brawls falls far short of what might be expected judging from the days when dram-drinking was legal.

Alien Can Not Make a Contract With Government to Exempt Him From Fighting.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Supreme Court, five to four, has decided that an alien must take the oath to fight if necessary.

We natives are born into that obligation, willy-nilly. The application for naturalization is voluntary on the part of the alien. He wants to become a citizen, but wishes to except the obligation for defense, which we can not renounce. Congress has exempted certain classes of native citizens. If he should become a citizen, he would be entitled to the same exemption. But he wants to make a contract with the Government before becoming a citizen. He submits a condition by which he secures personally a privilege which the native can not obtain. He becomes a citizen on a different plane—a supercitizen—who by contract is exempt from the authority of Congress in the matter of defense.

This may be disputed, but it seems clear to me that if he is sworn in with an express exception in this respect it is a contract.

I have not before me the general oath of office, which the very distinguished Chief Justice cites as parallel. It seems to me, however worded, there is a clear distinction in the subject matter. Civil office has no direct relation to arms or war. When war comes, these officials would be subject to the laws of the country in respect of national defense. The privileged alien has withdrawn himself with the consent of the Government from the authority of Congress. If he will not come in even-footed with the native let him stay out.

"Pop" Reynolds, Veteran Ball Fan, Makes Pennant Predictions for 1931.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the issue of The Post of May 25, there are a few words from Box Seater II, relative to the Washington Baseball Club, as it is now constituted, saying that if each individual member of the team plays each game with his head up and puts every ounce of himself into every playing moment of each game, the club is unbeatable and they will win the pennant.

As far as the pennant in the American League is concerned for 1931, it is already won and by the Philadelphians. They are unbeatable. It is just a breeze for them, and good practice for the World Series, which will be between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics. The real race in the American League will be for second place, the Yankees and Senators fighting it out on that line. The Yanks have a great manager in Joe McCarthy, and when the season ends you will see that the Macs have predominated. Cornelius McGillicuddy, manager of the Athletics, first; Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, second. In the National League, John McGraw's Giants will win. This will be a great year for the Macs in baseball.

This letter is from an old baseball fan who has seen the game played since the 70's in all the leagues since that time; and knows his baseball.

Registration of Weapons Would Help in Suppression of Crime.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why can not the sale of guns be regulated through registry of ownership similar to the manner in which automobiles are sold? One in the position of carrying a concealed weapon, unregistered, could be dealt with in such manner that law-abiding citizens would register their guns. Furthermore, one could not dispose of a concealed weapon without filing with the proper authority a notice thereof. I think we have come to the place in life, due to the ease and speed of traveling, where we must enact modern laws to keep up with the pace of civilization.

NEW YORK WATCHES HUGE U.S. AIR FLEET

Planes Fly Over Manhattan Island and Go Through Number of Stunts.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Their birdlike forms glistening in the sunshine of an ideal spring day, Uncle Sam's fighting air army of 600 planes roared down the Hudson Valley and across Manhattan's skyline today.

Thousands of New Yorkers watched the spectacle from the battery, at the tip of Manhattan, and other vantage points as the planes, wedged in spearhead echelons, sped the full length of the island for the second time in four days.

It was a faultless performance of flying in mass formation that the armada gave and as the planes dropped to earth at four of the air fields that dot Long Island, the dauntless crews were greeted by the terse "well done" of Gen. MacArthur, chief of staff.

The laconic message from the Army chief was wired from Bolling Field, Washington, to Brig. Gen. B. D. Foulois, commander of the first provisional air division.

Consolidated at Troy.

The armada zoomed into the air in two sections this morning from Springfield, Mass., and Hartford, Conn. They were consolidated at Troy, N. Y., and sped down historic Hudson Valley which saw so much of the decisive action of the first American Army in the Revolutionary War.

The flight was devoid of intricate maneuvers, with two exceptions. Spectators in the vicinity of Pier A, the North River, along whose shores great ocean liners are moored, were treated to an unexpected thrill. Pursuit planes banked sharply and dove at terrific speed toward the giant bombers. Then, when it appeared to watchers from below that a crash was inevitable, the light fighting craft pulled up in an abruptly half roll directly over the bombers, which were by that time droning across the middle of the bay. All of the planes then straightened out and soon were lost to sight.

Bombers Thrill Travelers.

Several bombers gave passengers aboard the French liner France and the White Star liner Majestic a treat. As the vessels were being nosed into their piers the bombers approached and dipped to where it seemed they almost touched the smokestacks of the France before continuing toward Long Island.

Tomorrow the fleet will cruise over New Jersey with a review and demonstration scheduled for Atlantic City. Thursday will be a rest day. On Friday the armada will fly to Washington, where the maneuvers will close with an imaginary defense of the Capital, which President Hoover is expected to witness.

It was estimated that the Air Division has flown a total of 1,750,000 plane air miles and that before all have returned to their home bases the total will be nearly 2,300,000 miles.

FASCIST AND CHURCH CRISIS DRAWING NEAR the group said, but the purpose of the meeting is not known.

Organization Held Antifascist.

Rome, May 26 (A.P.).—The newspaper Lavoro Fascisti today declared the organization, Catholic Action, to be anti-Fascist, and in support of its charge published several speeches which it said had been made in a secret executive meeting of the organization, one of them by Mgr. Pizzardo, papal undersecretary of state.

The newspaper quotes Dr. Rossi, vice president of Catholic Action, as having said that organization should carry on religious manifestations in such manner as "to be able to denounce fascism to the public opinion of Italy and all the world."

The paper also quotes Prof. Savatori, secretary general of the organization, as moving that directors of the Catholic Action be prohibited from belonging to the Fascist party. Dr. Calvelli, president of the Tuscan section of the society, is quoted as saying that whoever leaves the Catholic Action order to join the Fascist organization betrays the Catholic Church.

Mgr. Pizzardo, according to the newspaper, said the Catholic Action "should be capable not only of reacting against anti-Catholicism but also of taking possession of power."

Attorney Iervolino, president of the organization, is said to have reported that the society has 300,000 members in Italy.

begin immediately an inventory of the property holdings of Catholic religious orders in Spain.

No official reason was given for the order tonight, but its announcement gave rise to unconfirmed reports in some Catholic circles that it was possible the government might be contemplating enactment of a measure which would declare that the property of religious houses belongs to the state.

No comment was available, however, from high authorities of either the government or the church.

Beyond a recent decree forbidding the sale of art and literary treasures in Spain, most of which belong to church organizations, without the consent of the government, the cabinet has given no indication of its attitude toward other holdings of the religious institutions.

It was almost a century ago, in 1837, that the then minister of justice, Mendizabal, promulgated a measure which resulted in church property being seized by the state.

This measure precipitated one of the most animated discussions in history between Spain and the Vatican and provided the theme for many fiery parliamentary debates until the problem was solved in 1871 by the signing of the concordat with the Vatican.

Races in Paris Are Attractive To Americans

Countess Granard, Noted as Horsewoman, Sister of Ogden C. Mills.

As the locale of the horse show moves steadily Northward and Eastward in this country it reaches its peak in Paris where Americans are flocking to the Longchamps races. At the famous resort near Paris on Sunday the 3-year-old colt, Brasik, owned by Countess Granard, won the classic Prix Noailles, worth $5,000. Countess Granard is a sister of Undersecretary of the Treasury, Mr. Ogden L. Mills, and is the former Beatrice Mills, of Dutchess County, N. Y., whose marriage to the Irish Earl took place in 1909.

Countess Granard's fondness for the track and her string of horses have placed her well in the front of the vanguard of Europe's sportswomen. The baronial place of the Earl and Countess Granard, Castle Donington, in County Leicester, harbors horses of world-wide fame and beckons annually to Ireland the elite of Great Britain and the Continent in search of entertainment in the realm of King Horse.

At the Irish estate also the daughters of the Earl and Countess Granard, Lady Beatrice and Lady Moira Mary, gather about them young people interested in riding and often take part as well in notable Irish horse shows. Both the young girls were presented at court last year and since that time have joined in the festivities of the great London house, which, through the season is the center of much entertaining.

Mrs. Nathan C. Pickles, wife of Maj. Pickles, U. S. A., entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home in honor of Mrs. Oscar Snyder and Mrs. Lynn H. Tingay, wives of Army officers who have received details out of Washington. Maj. Snyder has been ordered to Fort Thomas, Ky., and Maj. Tingay to Panama, and both will leave soon for their posts. Bridge followed the luncheon yesterday.

The other guests were Mrs. Julian Bernheim, Mrs. Robert Craven, Mrs. William Siefert, Mrs. Leroy Hartley, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mrs. James R. Mann, Miss Alice Bernheim, Mrs. Neil Harper, Mrs. Warren Caldwell, Mrs. Dell Gray, Mrs. Page Chesser and Mrs. Lena Fear, mother of the hostess.

Maj. and Mrs. Alexander M. Patch, jr., entertained at a picnic yesterday at the quarters, at Fort Washington, Md., pupils of the Cook School on Massachusetts avenue. The young guests, many of them accompanied by their mothers, left the Army War College on a Government boat for the Army post. Among those whose children attend the school are Ambassador of Germany and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron, the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, the former Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, jr., Mrs. Percival McCeney Werlich and Mrs. Mark Reid Yates.

Parties Are Given For Bride-Elect.

Trader entertained at a dinner party for her recently at the Dodge Hotel; Miss Hermie Johns was hostess to a bridge shower in her honor and Miss Winifred Bell also entertained for her.

Miss Frances Gutelius will entertain at her studios tonight and tomorrow night when Mrs. Charles Dunn and Miss Josephine Noel, pianists, assisted by Miss Haseltine Dunn, coloratura soprano, will present a program of modern music. Mrs. Dunn and Miss Noel will close the program with waltzes for two pianos by Heinrich Gebhard.

Mrs. Randolph C. Harrison and Mrs. Horace S. Hawes, of Richmond, are passing the week at the Mayflower.

Presentation of two prize plays, awarded first and second places in the recent playwriting contest of the Arts Club, written by Miss Isabel McDougall and Mrs. Edwin H. Etz, will be given at the club tomorrow evening. Mrs. William J. Peters will have the evening in charge.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Too Many Kisses.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I hope that you will help me, as I have given up trying to decide what to do myself.

I am engaged to a young man who is a senior in college. The engagement has never been announced. It is more or less an understanding between ourselves.

The first year I went with him everything was simply beautiful. He was everything a boy should be and had the greatest respect for me. Lately everything seems to be wrong. It seems like all we do is "pet." I do not like this word, but it's the only one that everyone seems to know. Now this doesn't seem to be a foundation upon which to found a marriage. We don't seem to have anything else to do, so we start. He doesn't have an awful lot of money to spend, but what he does have we spend together going to a show about three times a week and staying downtown to dinner one of these nights. Just as soon as we get home we start petting.

We have talked it over and decided that we will quit. For about three or four days everything will go along beautifully, but then we seem to forget our good resolutions.

We have friends and go out with them once or twice a week and have a lovely time, but just as soon as we are alone it seems there is only one thing we know what to do. I suppose it is because we see each other almost every night and don't have much to talk about that is new.

I wish we could get back like we were the first year we went together, but it just seems we can't. I hope you'll be able to advise me what to do. I'm always so ashamed afterward and often fear that he is, too. He doesn't seem to tire of me and is always awfully sweet. We never do anything really wrong, but still it's rather awful. Sincerely,

DISGUSTED.

Well, now, you are too sweet and intelligent a child to permit what should be the most wonderful experience of your life to deteriorate into a rather tawdry and regrettable episode—are you not?

So here is the answer. You must start some sort of class that will serve as excuse to see your sweetheart less often. There are plenty of classes and they are free and especially designed for little girls who have nothing to talk about. Once you start, you will become mightily interested in what you study and will be quite full of your subject when the boy comes. Take up home making or cooking. That will remove the sting from any suspicion he may have that you are trying to escape his caresses. It will serve also to emphasize the sweeter phase of your association. You see, dear, there is so much more to joining your life to a man's life than the matter of physical attraction.

You are going to take the place of this boy's mother. You will be greatly responsible for his success or failure in life. When he is a middle-aged man, tired of the struggle, or sitting on top of the world—it matters not which—his success or his failure will be your success or failure. He will be to you in failure or success inexpressibly dear. But he will be what you have made him. To you he will be always right. But in your heart you will regret every instance in which you have failed him. Rejoice in every act that helped him on his way.

Kisses are unspeakably sweet. They are the universal language. The pledge of reality in a world where nothing is quite real. The lover finds in the woman's kiss what the child frightened in the night finds in the touch of the mother's hand. Men sense the unreality of things more than women. They never speak of it. But they hunger for the security of a woman's arms. All this, you now call "petting." Because you are only a baby. Yet you are what spells reality and security for this boy. Do not fail him. Be to him what every man prays some woman will some day be—the answer to what otherwise is futility. Next time your lover kisses you think of these things. And put your thoughts into the kiss that answers his. It is the high privilege of womanhood to lift man to the stars.

Start the class, dear. Start life. You will find the boy will follow where you lead.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Mirande makes clever and unusual use of draping in her gray crepe romaine tunic frock at right.

At left, Maggy Rouff uses wool voile in beige for a frock with a similar neck drape.

New York, May 26.

JUST think how simple life used to be, my dear, when there were only four or five or maybe six or just a few more names to all the kinds of materials you needed in your wardrobe from one end of the day to the other. You could get along beautifully with just crepe, satin, taffeta, chiffon and jersey, etc. Well, things are much more complicated now but how much more interesting they are, too! If you don't like complications blame it on the woolens first and on artificial silks next, for having brought these complications about.

I couldn't begin to tell you all the amazing waves and the more amazing names that woolens have taken on. However, if you see a light weight spongy weave woolen, remember that it might be "trillisikah" a "kashamoussa," honestly. Or that a pebbly surfaced woolen material can be "burraful" or "marcelya" and that "kadsourah" is a hand-made rustic weave woolen with an irregular surface. Then there are the very open weave woolens which have names like "voilescourt" and "voile rodellci" and "tussalya" and "lullya"—but don't bother your pretty heads about them. I'm only telling you their names so that if you should happen to read them somewhere you won't think they are the names of strange new diseases!

But there are at least two materials as well as the names for them that you should really incorporate into your fabric vocabulary as well as into your wardrobe. One is Rodier's "sinellic" which is made of artificial silk and which comes in both a plain and ribbed weave. There is a cross-barred variety which looks like pique but which is ever so much more supple than pique and which is ideal for active sports costumes. Many of the couturiers use it. And then there is Bianchini's "flamenga," an artificial silk and wool weave. The wool forms the background and the silk is woven in patterns, flowers or stripes, etc., through it. It's a staple material now with all the Haute Couture for morning frocks and it's an extremely beautiful and hard-wearing material, too.

* * * *

Don't you ever get tired of that black bag, even though it did cost an awful lot when you first bought it? I have become tired of a good many bags—in fact, bags are my weakness—and spent lots of my hard-earned pennies on more and more of them. Because, you know, it seems to me that a bag, however beautiful it may be, has to be just as up-to-the-minute as the rest of your costume to give one that desirable smart appearance. And so, having made a study of this year's bags, I have made a leaflet for you about them, which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Better hurry—you can't begin too soon to make a bag for every costume, and economically, now can you?

* * * *

There is something very significant in the scarf collar effect which is cut all in one piece with the dress, and I have selected two examples of this to illustrate for you today. Both of these dresses are for informal summer afternoon wear, and the one on the right from Mirande was of lovely grey crepe romain in a tunic effect, whilst the one on the left is a Maggy Rouff model in beige woolen voile. Neither one of them depends upon anything but its cut for its elegance, which as you can see is very much the idea of today's mode.

* * * *

When you next think of buying an afternoon frock, it might be a good idea to remember how very chic an untrimmed one can be!

You'll be interested to know in the weekly Dare Fashion letter in next Sunday's Washington Post.

Au Revoir.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF May 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 4:10 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8:50 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 1:15 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 8:10 p. m.

The astrological signs of May 27th reveal conflicting influences some good, some bad. Extreme caution will be needed to avoid making serious mistakes. If not absolutely sure of yourself, stick to the regular routine! Remember that "all that glitters is not gold."

Children born on this May 27th promise to be very attractive. This gift will remain with them, and as time improves them, they will develop wonderful personalities. Joined to this, they will be loyal, persevering, and courageous. The future holds in store for them many valuable prizes.

Born on May 27th, there is nothing specially outstanding in your character except that your nature is an all-around one. You have not specialized in any one thing, but can do a whole lot of things exceptionally well. In the same way, your tastes are not individual; they are cosmopolitan. Your outlook is neither local nor national; it is international. You possess the happy gift of being able to detach yourself from personal interest, and judge matters—even though they affect your welfare—from the point of view of an outsider and a spectator.

You evince a keen interest in sports—rather than in a sport. You are not a champion of any class, but are a good runner-up in nearly all classes. You possess artistic tastes, and although not an executant of the first order, can produce pleasing and satisfactory results. You are not an authority on any special subject, but have a useful general knowledge which, although not encyclopedic, is wide in its range.

You are generous and wholesouled. You are emotional and demonstrative in your affection. You are domestic and derive great pleasure from your home. You are disposed to be extravagant but rarely on yourself. You have a wide circle of friends and admirers.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Carmichael" is generally of Scottish origin, and means "the friend of St. Michael." The personal name "Michael" is of Hebrew origin, and may be translated "who is like God." Some families who bear the name "Carmichael" have received it because of a former residence in Carmichael, Lanarkshire. This placename may be translated "Michael's stronghold" or "Michael's fort." In some cases the family name "Carmichael" represents an original Irish name meaning "the son of the servant of St. Michael." Early spellings of the Scottish place-name are "Kermichael" (1180) and "Karemigel" (1250).

The commonest English family names which are based on the personal name "Edward" are "Edwards," "Edwardson," "Edwarde" and "Edwardeson." The source of all these names is the Anglo-Saxon personal name "Eadweard," which may be translated "blessed guardian" or "prosperous guardian." Fourteenth century instances of this name in English documents are Adam Edward, Willelmus Edward and Ricardus Edward. Although such English names as "Richardson" and "Williamson" are extremely common, the long form "Edwardson" has always been relatively rare, its place being taken by the shorter "Edwards." "Edwardson" appears to be first recorded in 1594. The French form of this name is "Edouard." In Italy it is found as "Eduardo," "Edoardo" and "Odoardo."

The family name "Kenny" (also spelled "Kenney," "Kinny," "Kinney," &c.) may be traced back to several Celtic sources. Its commonest meanings are "the descendant of Cionaodh" and "the son of Cionaodh." The personal name "Cionaodh" means "sprung from fire." According to other sources, "Kenny" and its variations may also mean "the descendant of the merchant," "the descendant of ardent love" and "the descendant of the devout man."

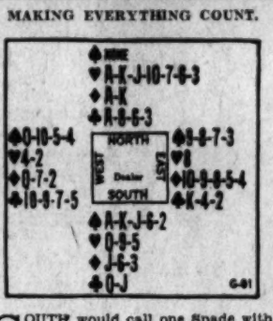
WORK ON BRIDGE

MAKING EVERYTHING COUNT.



SOUTH would call one Spade with this hand at Auction, and North would secure the contract with a bid of two Hearts. At Contract the bidding was far more interesting. South opened with a Spade, West passed, and North called three Hearts—a jump-shift bid that required South to keep the bidding open. South, with support for North's suit, bid four Hearts. North, neither vulnerable nor timid, bid seven Hearts.

East led a Diamond; North won and drew trumps, the first round with his own Ace, the second with dummy's Queen. On dummy's Ace-King of Spades, North discarded two Clubs. A small Spade was now led and trumped. When the Queen of Spades failed to drop there was nothing to do but put dummy in the lead again with the Nine of Hearts and try the Club finesse. This lost and the contract was set one trick. Did Declarer make use of every play at his disposal?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

In order to eliminate the danger incident to the Club finesse, Declarer required three discards on dummy's Spades. He played the Spades in such a manner that if the Queen were singleton, or once guarded or twice guarded, it would be captured and a third discard obtained. This fortunate distribution would occur, however, less than twenty-three per cent of the time. Declarer should (and could) have played the Spades so that even a thrice-guarded Queen would drop.

After winning the first trick, he should lead his Six of Hearts and take it in dummy. At trick 3, a small Spade should be ruffed with an honor. The Seven of Hearts should be won in dummy and another small Spade ruffed with an honor. Dummy's Five of Hearts now overtakes Declarer's Trey and serves as an entry for the Ace-King-Jack of Spades. Playing in this way Declarer almost surely will drop the Queen and make a grand slam, without the risk of the Club finesse. If the Queen of Spades does not drop, the Club finesse can be tried.

SOME FACTS ABOUT WINDOW BOXES.

SO many letters are being sent to me each day regarding window boxes that I feel sure that, even though we have had three articles on this subject in the last four months, there are still many readers who are in need of some practical suggestions about the planting and care of window boxes and of porch boxes.

A window box or a porch box, if planted intelligently, is a continual delight all summer, and when fall comes we can discard our summer plants and replace them with low-growing evergreens—or if money must be considered, fill the box with the terminal ends of evergreen.

We must, to be successful, above all else consider the location of our boxes. If our windows face away from the sun, it would be useless to choose flowering plants of any sort, since flowering plants will be an utter failure without sunlight. Though we purchase from the florist the best of soil and the box be filled with the choicest specimens, beautiful when first set out, without sun they will fade and wane just as soon as the first flowers have disappeared. No matter how regularly we may water them, or how tenderly we care for them, we will fail to produce healthy growth of blossoms on flowering plants without plenty of sunlight.

But we do not have to despair of having beautiful boxes because we lack the direct rays of the sun. In the window box we have an idea for beautifying the dreary side of the house. Here our window boxes can be filled with plants which grow vigorously, because thus located they are in their natural habitat. In such a location, some plants flourish and are a continual delight from early spring until late fall.

There are certain varieties of plants with which every one can be successful with very little knowledge and actual experience in plant growing. The variety of plants best suited to a sunless window are, strictly speaking, foliage plants. These are just as satisfying in their way and frequently more luxuriant than flowering plants.

Above all other plants I consider the petunias the wisest selection for window or porch boxes which are in the sun for five or more hours a day. All petunias are beautiful, but I think the Angel of Heaven one of the very best varieties in respect to the general constitution of the plant, beauty of coloring and profuseness of bloom.

Window boxes require little care except watering. They can not be neglected along this line. In the case of flowering plants, we must make it a rule to remove all flowers as soon as they show signs of fading, for it is only by so doing that we prevent the plants from developing seeds. Plants which go to seed produce few if any more flowers.

BORAH HOLDS SLIGHT DISARMAMENT HOPE

Address by Radio Points Out Unsettled Conditions Over Europe.

(Associated Press.)

Slight hope for cuts in land armaments at the Geneva disarmament parley next February was held out last night by Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee because of unsettled conditions in Europe.

Senator Borah gave his views on international affairs over the radio from the historic Senate foreign relations committee room.

The senator advocated Russian recognition; belittled fears of Soviet propaganda; urged greater trade with Russia, and indorsed the administration's policy of noninterference in Nicaragua.

As for the forthcoming disarmament conference, Mr. Borah feared the dispute over the Austro-German customs accord and the French-Italian naval situation stood in the way of "real success."

In the first reference to the Austro-German customs agreement coming from any official source in this country, the foreign relations committee chairman remarked, "This pact is supposed in some way to challenge the sacred integrity of the Versailles treaty."

Indicating his dislike for this treaty as well as for the opposition to the trade agreement, he added: "I do not expect to see any land disarmament so long as there is no peaceful method provided for the revision of the peace treaties."

U. S. Chairman Honored By Austrian Red Cross

(Associated Press.)

John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, yesterday received a medal of distinction from the Austrian Red Cross Society. Minister Edgar Prochnik, of Austria, conferred on Payne the senior order of the first class of the Austrian Red Cross to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the American organization.

"In conferring this token of distinction," Prochnik said in ceremonies at Red Cross headquarters, "we could hardly show our appreciation in truer form than by singling out the man who is your leader and has opened the way to the great success of your society."

Water Bills Average Bigger Sum Than Usual

Water bills just sent by the Department to consumers in the northwest section are running higher than usual, E. H. Grove, water registrar, said yesterday, because of the drought last summer and the raise in the minimum rate on July 1 from $6.36 to $8.75.

An investigation of the department also revealed many leaks in equipment of householders and showed that mechanical refrigerators which use water consume alone more water than the 7,500 cubic feet allowed for the $8.75.

CASH AWAITS IDEAS IN POST AD CONTEST

With Last Week of Zain Test Well Under Way, Mail Entries Today.

The final week of the Post Zain Ad Writing Contest is now well under way and soon it will all be over. Don't be the one to say, "If only I had written more ads and given myself more chances to win I might have been the one to win the $1,000 grand prize!" Write many ads each day and send them to the editor of the Post Zain Ad Contest, Washington Post. Don't wait until the last day to mail your ads. Do it now! Here are some ad suggestions that might help you express the $1,000 idea.

When you write about United Food Stores feature this company's 60 Washington owned and operated stores. This gives a tremendous buying power and enables the stores to sell highest quality meats, vegetables and groceries at the lowest prices. There is the item of efficient delivery service to incorporate in your ads also.

Printing, the kind done by Gibson Bros., can be an effective sales builder. Success depends largely upon good printing. Gibson Bros. is equipped efficiently to take care of the smallest printing job as well as the largest. Immediate delivery service is another feature.

Radio Is Special Prize.

Brunswick Radios, product of Warner Bros. of picture fame, lend themselves to excellent ad writing. See the one on display at the Arthur Jordan Piano Co., then write the ad that will be selected as winner of this beautiful $158 Brunswick Radio. The Arthur Jordan Piano Co. affords you many other splendid subjects about which to write the ad that will win the $1,000 grand prize.

The best ad for the $100 strand of Richelieu Pearls, which is displayed at Goldsmith & Co., has not yet been written. Ads about these exquisite pearls should be easy to write. This concern has excellent material for general ads about its 57 years of service and high-grade merchandise. The $1,000 grand award can be yours. Perhaps your ad about this concern will win it for you.

National Pale Dry Ginger Ale, the Nation's favorite drink, with which all of us, young and old, are familiar, is another good subject for ads. Tell about this stimulating, refreshing, deliciously different ginger ale in an ad. Try a bottle of this healthful, cooling drink, and the result will be better ads.

Here's a Chance to Double the Money.

Here is another concern to write about, Rizik Bros., specialists in women's wear. Remember to incorporate both stores in your ads. It is worth while spending many hours to write that grand prize ad about this concern, because if it is selected as the grand prize winner and it is about Rizik Bros., the firm will give an additional $1,000, making the total $2,000. That's a lot of money.

The Washington Gas Light Co. is featuring automatic gas heat, the latest method of home heating. Try writing an ad about its cleanliness and freedom from ashes and dirt. A big factor in gas heating is its carefree operation. A single match in the fall is your winter's kindling supply. When the gas is turned on, a thermostat controls the furnace and maintains an even heat within the home at all times. There is also a $200 Janitrol Gas Burner which some one will receive for writing ads about this concern, and it might as well be you.

Thomas E. Clark, Inc., the home of standard plumbing fixtures, gives you another great chance to win the $1,000 grand prize. Write about its complete stock of fixtures in colors to suit the individual or the home. Incorporate also the acid-resisting fixtures at small additional cost. The $20 merchandise order his concern is giving should provide an added incentive.

Five Stores for Service.

When you buy tires naturally you want the best. The U. S. Royal Cord Tires, which can be purchased at any of the Bailey Tire Stores—five convenient stores—are just that, the best. What's more, they are priced very low. Write lots of ads about nationally known U. S. Royal Cord Tires. Call at one of these stores and get more information about these tires. The $1,000 grand award ad should not be hard to write about this concern, because every one of you appreciate real value.

When you think you haven't any more ideas and you don't know what to write, buy a loaf of pure, wholesome Associated Bakery Unions bread and its nourishment and excellence will open your storeroom of original ads and you will find you can write better than ever before. Remember, it's the bread with the label.

Fairfax Farms Dairies provide many subjects about which you can write prize-winning ads. Get out your pencil and paper and write some real ads about this Washington owned and operated Union Dairy. The only dairy in Washington that sells rich, pure, wholesome Hi-Test Jersey milk. It is famous for its milk, cream and other products. You can write an equally famous ad about it, one that will win the grand prize.

Another Special Prize Offered.

Three convenient stores, completely equipped with stock to outfit any man from head to toe in the latest fashions of men's wear. That's D. J. Kaufman or Radio Joe. Have you seen the special prize these stores are giving at the close of this contest? It's on display at the store at 1005 Pennsylvania avenue. Come on, every one—that's a prize worth winning, fellows—better and better ads can be written about this concern.

What could be finer than a smartly designed, equipped-for-comfort car, reasonably priced, easily paid for and economically driven, and a motor company with the all modern up-to-date equipment ready to service it at any hour of the day or night. That's what the Steuart Motor Co. represents, service, and the car it sells is the Ford. What splendid ads you can write about this concern.

Thirty years of quality service should be incorporated in your ads about the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. Feature the fireproof warehouses, moth-proof storage and all the many departments. Efficient delivery service is insurance against delays. There are many ideas that can be woven into splendid ads about this concern.

Theater Is Good Subject.

The Earle Theater, the home of good pictures, Warner Bros. productions, the thank-you girl, charming Miss Maxine Doyle, and entertaining stage productions, give you some idea of the host of things you can incorporate in your ads about this theater and win the $1,000 grand prize. Don't overlook the wonderful system of ventilation—cool in summer and comfortably warm in the winter.

The P. J. Nee Co. has on display a $78 English lounge chair it is giving as a special prize. One of your big ambitions should be to win that chair, and you can. All you need is one idea. The same idea might win the $1,000 prize also. So write many ads about this old, reliable dealer in fine furniture and be the big winner.

Perhaps your ad about the Washington Building may be the prize winner. Feature the ideal location, excellent ventilation, large airy offices, exceptional lighting and all the other essentials that combine to make this building on the "World Corner" one of national fame.

Other Suggestions Listed.

Who couldn't write a prize-winning ad about Avignone Freres' delicious candy and ice cream. The pure ingredients have earned this firm the name of the "house of the candy and ice cream king." Try some of its "melt-in-the-mouth" kind of candy. Some one said "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," so it is with Avignone Freres candy and ice cream. Try some and see if is doesn't result in the writing of the $1,000 grand prize-winning ad.

When you buy shoes do you buy for smart appearance or comfort? Edmonston shoes provide both. This store not only has the latest in fashions for young and old, but its foot-form shoes eliminate foot fatigue. Remember the "Physical Culture" shoe for women and the Stacy Adams shoe for men. Get busy on that prize-winning ad about these shoes.

Memories are something which gradually lose their original vividness and clearness, but with a picture one can always treasure it. Underwood & Underwood have the latest in cameras, the Beidler Viken method. The portraits they make with this camera are natural and lifelike. In your ads about this concern use heart appeal. Remember, too, that these portraits are made at astonishingly low prices.

The Home Laundry should need no introduction to you. Besides calling it the home of courteous employes, feature its fleet of delivery trucks, courteous drivers and sanitary methods used to safeguard your clothing. Write many ads today about this concern. The last one you write may be the big winner.

Last, but not least, we have Wilkins' Just Wonderful Coffee to write ads about. What just wonderful ads can be written about this drink. Here, too, is another wonderful opportunity to win the $1,000 grand prize. Don't forget the three outstanding features of Wilkins Coffee, Quality, Freshness and Price. Be a winner. Write your ads—now—mail—today.

SOME THINGS TO CONSIDER ABOUT A BANKING CONNECTION

Financial strength, operating policies and location are among the foremost factors that prospective bank customers consider before giving their confidence to any particular institution.

In considering these fundamentals to satisfactory banking, one may look to the American Security and Trust Company and find some facts worthy of comment.

Its capital stock, which means additional security to depositors and greater lending power to individual borrowers, is greater than that of any other local financial institution.

Its steady growth, extending over a period of forty-one years, is the monument to an interested customer service—one that is based on progressive yet conservative methods.

Its five banking offices, situated in five sections of the city, offer a choice of location, together with the attending advantages of the large resources of the combined institution.

You are invited to call on the officers at any banking office of this Company.

O'MALLEY'S DEATH EVENS PARTY LOSS

Democrats, and Republicans, Each Missing Two From Ranks.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Representative-elect Matthew J. O'Malley (Democrat), Brooklyn, died suddenly today of a heart attack. He was 53 years old.

A decision as to the selection of O'Malley's successor rests with Gov. Roosevelt, who returns from Europe tomorrow. The opinion was expressed in political circles that the governor would call a special election. The Seventh district is considered solidly Democratic.

(Associated Press.)

Republican and Democratic parties have suffered equal losses by death from the membership of the closely divided House. The political division now stands: Republicans, 216; Democrats, 214, and Farmer-Labor, 1.

Representative-elect Matthew J. O'Malley (Democrat), Brooklyn, died before taking the oath of office. He was elected to the vacancy in the Seventh New York district caused by the death last November 27 of Representative John F. Quayle.

The Democrats also lost Representative Aswell, of Louisiana. The Republicans lost Speaker Longworth and Representative Cooper, of Wisconsin. John Overton has been nominated by Louisiana Democrats to succeed Aswell.

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Jane helps Flora to dispose of her mother's clothing. The Furness house is closed while Flora and her father go abroad. Stephen Carver tells Jane he loves her, but the memory of Andre rises in Jane's heart and she tells Stephen she can never marry him. Jane and her family go West for the summer. When they return, Stephen pays open court to her, much to the approval of Mrs. Ward and Isabel. Jane, however, refuses to commit herself.

STEPHEN—CHAPTER V.

"THIS," said Mr. Ward, "means war." He looked very seriously across the dining room table at his wife and daughter. On the shining damask cloth at his elbow several copies of the evening paper flaunted their thick black headlines. Jane could see them from where she sat. "U. S. Battleship Maine Blown Up in Havana Harbor." "Three Hundred and Five Men Killed or Injured." "President McKinley Demands Inquiry."

Jane looked at her father very solemnly.

"War," thought Jane. It was somehow unthinkable. War couldn't be visualized in that quiet candle-lit room. No one said anything more. The hoarse, raucous voices of newsboys, crying the last extras on the disaster, punctured the silence. Jane could hear them blocks away, echoing across the silent city. Newsboys were crying extras like that, thought Jane, in every large city in the world. In New York and London and Berlin and Paris—Paris, where Andre might hear them—newsboys were shouting "U. S. Battleship Maine Blown Up in Havana Harbor." War with Spain. War—after, her father had just said, 33 long years of peace.

"I think," said Mrs. Ward, finally, "that some one will do something. There will never be another war between civilized people."

"The Spaniards aren't civilized," said Mr. Ward. "Their Cuban atrocities have proved that."

Will Free Cuba, He Insists.

"They're a very powerful nation," said Mrs. Ward.

"They're a very tricky one," said her husband. "But we'll free Cuba if it takes every young man in America."

* * * *

"Miss Jane," said Minnie, "Mr. Carver has called."

"Mr. Carver?" questioned Jane. It was only 4 o'clock on a week-day afternoon. Why wasn't Stephen at the bank?

"Tell him that I'll come down," said Jane.

What was Stephen doing on Pine street at this hour. Stephen never left the bank until five. She didn't see it at all. What did Stephen want of her? Day before yesterday the United States had declared war.

Jane walked very slowly down the stairs.

"Stephen?" she called, questioningly.

"Here, Jane," he answered. His voice came from the library. Jane entered the room.

Stephen was standing very straight and tall by the smoldering fire. He grinned as she entered. Nevertheless, he looked a little solemn.

"What are you doing here in office hours?" smiled Jane. "Come to sell me a bond?"

"No," said Stephen, simply. "I haven't."

Stephen Wants to Go to War.

Jane dropped down on the sofa by the fire. She gazed up at Stephen in silence.

"I've come to sell you," said Stephen, "this idea of going to war."

Jane's head gave a great jump beneath her plaid silk bodice. The unspoken question was answered.

"I'm going to join the Rough Riders," said Stephen, firmly. "I made up my mind this morning. There's no excuse for my sticking around here a minute longer."

"When—when are you going?" said Jane, faintly.

"Right away," said Stephen. "I spoke to my boss this afternoon. I'll write to father tonight."

"Oh—Stephen!" said Jane, again still more faintly.

"I want to go," said Stephen. "It's not so often that you want to do what you ought."

That was true enough, thought Jane. But who could want to go to war?

"Lots of Harvard men have joined up," said Stephen, "because of Roosevelt—some men I know in Boston are going. They wrote me last week. I'm all signed up with them. We're going to meet in San Antonio."

"When?" 'asked Jane.

"As soon as they can make it," said Stephen. "One of them has to tie up his business. Another one's married."

"How—how long do you think?" asked Jane.

"Oh—we ought to be down there in two weeks," said Stephen.

Jane Feels Solemnity.

Jane sat in silence on the sofa. Two weeks.

"It will be fun," said Stephen. "Roosevelt's got a great crowd down there."

Jane still sat in silence.

"Don't look so solemn, Jane," said Stephen.

"I feel solemn," said Jane.

"You wouldn't want me not to go," said Stephen.

"Yes, I would," said Jane promptly.

Stephen looked very much pleased. And a little amused.

"When it comes to the point," said Jane, "I guess I'm not much of a patriot."

"Oh, yes," said Stephen persuasively, "you want to win the war."

Jane felt a refreshing flash of levity.

"Do you expect to win it?" she asked lightly.

Stephen flushed a bit.

"Don't mock me, Jane," he said seriously. Then a little hesitantly. "I'm awfully glad you're sorry."

"Of course I'm sorry," said Jane. "But I don't know that you ought to be glad about it."

"Just the same, I am," said Stephen, a little tremulously.

Silence fell on the room once more.

Time to Ask Her Again.

"Jane——" said Stephen presently, and paused. He was still standing on the hearth rug. He was looking down at Jane very steadily.

"Yes," said Jane, nervously. Her eyes were on the fire.

"Don't you think—don't you think," said Stephen, almost humorously, "that it's just about time for me to ask you again?"

It was very disarming. Jane couldn't help twinkling up at him.

"There's no time like the present," she said.

"Jane!" In a moment he was beside her on the sofa. "Jane—does that mean——" He had her hands in his.

"It doesn't mean anything," said Jane hastily.

"I don't believe you," said Stephen. He was very close to her. His eyes were gazing eagerly into hers. His lips were twisted in a funny little excited smile.

"I don't believe you at all," said Stephen. "Jane——" And suddenly he kissed her. His moustache felt rough and bristly against her lips.

"Oh!" said Jane, drawing back. Her heart was beating fast. That kiss was strangely exciting.

"Darling!" said Stephen. His arms were around her now. Jane's hands were pressed against the tweed lapels of his coat.

"Kiss me again!" said Stephen.

"I—I didn't kiss you!" cried Jane in protest. "I—I didn't at all!"

Insists He Loves Her.

"But you will," said Stephen. His face was flushed and eager. His eyes were gazing ardently into her own. Jane stared into them, fascinated. She could see the little yellow specks that seemed to float on the blue iris. She had never noticed them before.

"You will!" he declared again. And again his lips met hers. This—this was dreadful, thought Jane—she shouldn't allow it. He pressed his cheek to hers. It felt very hard and just a little rough, against her own.

"Stephen," said Jane weakly. "Really—you mustn't."

"Why not?" said Stephen. "I love you."

Jane felt herself relaxing in his arms.

"You know I love you," said Stephen.

"Well," said Jane faintly, her head on his shoulder, "don't—don't kiss me again—anyway."

Stephen laughed aloud at that. A happy, confident laugh.

"You darling!" he said. Then very happily, "I—I'm so glad you told me, Jane, before I went."

Before he went, though Jane desperately! Of course—he was going. She had forgotten that. But she hadn't told him. It was all wrong, somehow. Jane looked despairingly up into his face.

"Stephen," she said pitifully, "I—I don't know, yet, if I love you."

Wants to Marry Before He Goes.

"Of course you do," said Stephen promptly. Jane wondered, in silence.

"Jane," said Stephen presently, "it—it's going to be terribly hard to leave you."

Jane did not speak. She felt all torn up inside. His tremulous voice was very moving.

"Jane," said Stephen very quietly, "you—you wouldn't marry me—before I went?"

Jane gave a great start. She slipped from his embrace.

"Oh, no!" cried Jane.

"I—I was afraid you wouldn't" said Stephen humbly.

"Oh—I couldn't!" said Jane. "I—I couldn't—marry—any one."

Stephen was smiling at her very tenderly.

"I don't want you to marry any one but me," he said cheerfully.

The levity in his tone was very reassuring.

"Stephen," said Jane, "you are a dear."

Stephen looked absurdly pleased. It was fun to please Stephen so easily.

"What sort of ring shall I get you?" he asked.

That, again, seemed oddly terrifying.

"Oh——" said Jane evasively. "I—I don't care. Don't—don't get a ring just yet."

"Of course I will," said Stephen. "I'll get it tomorrow."

Jane heard the doorbell ring—three, brief, peremptory peals.

Afraid Mother Will Guess.

"That's Mamma!" said Jane. Then in a sudden panic, "Oh, Stephen, please—please go. I don't want to tell her."

"We needn't tell her," said Stephen calmly.

"She'd guess!" cried Jane. "You don't know Mamma!!" She heard Minnie's step in the hall. "Oh, Stephen! Please go!"

"All right," said Stephen. He rose a bit uncertainly.

"Come back!" said Jane, wildly. "Come back after dinner! But now—I—I can't talk to Mamma. I—I want to think." She heard the front door open. She rose to her feet.

"Kiss me," said Stephen. He took her in his arms. Jane slipped quickly out of them. She fairly pushed him to the door. She heard him meet her mother in the hall.

"Why, Stephen!" Her mother's voice was pleased and, mercifully, unsuspecting. Stephen's answer was inaudible. Jane turned to poke the fire. Her mother entered the room.

"What was Stephen doing here at this hour?" she asked pleasantly.

"He came to talk about the war," said Jane, turning over the bits of charred birch very carefully.

"The war?" said Mrs. Ward.

"He thinks he'll enlist," said Jane.

Mother Shows Irritation.

"Oh—I think that's a mistake," said Mrs. Ward earnestly.

"Well—maybe he won't," said Jane casually, still busy with the fire.

Mrs. Ward walked over to the desk. She laid some letters down before her husband's chair.

"You're a funny girl, Jane," she said. "Don't you care at all if he does?"

"Oh, yes," said Jane. "I care—of course. But it's for him to decide." She turned to face her mother. "Is that the mail?" she asked

"Yes," said her mother. She was watching Jane very closely. Jane went over to the desk.

"Anything for me?" she asked.

"I didn't notice," said Mrs. Ward. There was a faint suggestion of irritation in her tone. Jane picked up the letters. She felt her air of indifference was just a little elaborate. Her mother left the room, however, without further parley.

Jane stood quietly, leaning against her father's desk, absently holding the letters in her hand. What had she done, thought Jane? How had it happened? Was she glad or sorry? She could hardly believe it, now Stephen had left the room. A moment ago she had been in his arms, on that sofa. He had—kissed her. Three times. She had let him do it. She had sat with him, on that sofa that always, always, made her think of Andre, of that dreadful moment when Andre had left her—she had sat there and let him kiss her—but Stephen was going to war. She wouldn't tell a soul. Not a soul—except her father. She would think it all over. She would tell Stephen tonight, that, at best, it must be an understanding. Suddenly Jane's eye fell on the French stamp of the topmost letter in her hand. A—French—stamp! Jane gazed at it, in horror. Yes—"Miss Jane Ward"—in handwriting that, though changed, was unmistakably Andre's. She would be 21 next week. He had written! Of course he had written. She had always known he would write! And she—faithless—within the hour had let Stephen Carver kiss her. Had let Stephen think that—Jane dropped the other letters on the desk. Holding Andre's close above her heart she rushed frantically out of the room and up the stairs and gained the sanctuary of her own bedroom. Softly she locked the door. Then sank into the chair by the window overlooking the amber willow tree. Andre had written. He had not forgotten. Andre was going to come.

BIRD DENIES PART IN BLACKMAIL CASE

Attorney Claims He Sought to Collect Money Due Nobles as Clients.

James F. Bird, one of the four defendants now before the Supreme Court for alleged complicity in the conspiracy to blackmail Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, yesterday entered a general and later a specific denial to the charges contained against him in the indictment.

Bird, an attorney who often has practiced before the very court in which he was testifying, traced his movements throughout the case, and time and again reiterated that his only motive was to collect money allegedly owing to Nobles, whom he represented.

Besides Bird, Stephen A. Armstrong, jr., Mrs. Anna Hillenbrand and W. Clark Noble are standing trial. Mrs. Emile B. Noble, wife of the sculptor, was given a directed verdict by Justice Jesse Adkins, who ruled there was insufficient evidence to establish a prima facie case against her.

Bird produced four prominent attorneys as character witnesses. They were Andrew Wilson, Austin F. Canfield, Paul J. Sedgewick and Joseph G. Shipley. All testified that Bird has an excellent reputation for truth and integrity.

Woodland Beach Ideal Place For Youngsters and Adults

Neighbor Hears Post Project Praised, With Chance to Acquire Choice Lot for Summer Home on Easy Payment Plan Emphasized.

"Have you bought a lot at Woodland Beach yet?" asked Mrs. Ima Lone as she leaned over the side fence yesterday, addressing Mrs. Otto Buy, her neighbor.

"Why, no. What and where is Woodland Beach?" replied Mrs. Buy.

"Oh, you ought to see it," cried Mrs. Lone. "Henry and I went out there Sunday after we'd read all about it in The Washington Post and Henry just couldn't resist the thought of having a place to fish and where the children can swim and go boating. He bought a choice spot right on the water and now he's busy making plans for a summer cottage."

"Well, just where is this Woodland Beach?" asked Mrs. Buy.

"It's just a nice drive from town. You take the Defense highway from here toward Annapolis. When you get to Camp Parole you turn right on the road leading over the South River Bridge—I think Henry said it was Maryland road No. 2—and then after you cross the bridge you turn left on the Mayo road and pretty soon you're right at Woodland Beach. Henry said it was 32 miles from Washington."

"How much did you pay for your lot?"

"That's the best part of it. A lot is only $93, and all the cash you have to put down is $9. You can pay the rest in installments of $3.50 a month. It's just like buying a car or a washing machine. And gee, the country down there is great. There's woods and water and everything the kids need in the summertime. I'm just crazy about the spot."

"Do I have to wait until next Sunday to buy a lot?" was Mrs. Buy's next question.

"Oh, no, you can go down to The Post, consult maps, pick out the location you want and sign up for your lot right there. The only other thing you have to do is subscribe to The Post, but you already do that, so it won't be anything new. We take it too and I know you've followed the same features in it that I have for years. We wouldn't be without The Post."

"I'm glad you told me about this. Otto and I had been thinking about getting a summer place, but we couldn't make up our minds just where, and most of the places the prices seemed too high. I'll tell Otto and he can go to The Post in the morning and see what it's all about."

"Well, I hear Bobby crying. I must run in. I'm sure you'll like it at Woodland Beach and if you can, tell your husband to get a lot close to ours. I think the number is X-9746. I'll see you later."

"Good-by."

Former Intelligence Officer Ends Own Life

San Francisco, May 26 (A.P.).—Bulkeley Wells, noted mining engineer, committed suicide in his office here today. He shot himself through the head. No note was found to indicate the reason.

Wells was with the Military Intelligence section of the Army at Washington during the war. In 1918 he was elected president of the American Mining Congress.

Yale Professor Drops Effort for Citizenship

New Haven, Conn., May 26 (A.P.).—Prof. Douglas C. MacIntosh, of Yale Divinity School, denied American citizenship by decision of the United States Supreme Court yesterday, said he would make no further effort to obtain his goal.

In his original application for citizenship he desired to take the reservation that he would not fight in wars "against the will of God." Today he said that his mind was unchanged, and as his view of the reservation was unacceptable to the United States he would not press the point or again make an effort to obtain citizenship. "My position is unalterable," he said.

Memorial Will Mark Colored Pastor's Grave

A memorial stone marking the grave of the Rev. James E. Willis, pastor of Vermont Avenue Baptist Church for eighteen years, will be dedicated Sunday morning at Orange, Va. During the pastorate of Dr. Willis the membership of this colored congregation grew to more than 6,000 and the church property was remodeled at a cost exceeding $100,000.

The church was among the earliest established by colored citizens in the District, being organized in 1866 by the Rev. John H. Brooks, who was succeeded by the late Rev. George W. Lee. The present pastor is the Rev. C. T. Murray. Unveiling of the stone at Orange has been arranged for by a committee headed by James E. Porter.

$400,000 Schadmann Will Is Sustained

A jury in the District Supreme Court yesterday sustained the will of George B. Schadmann, who for many years conducted the Columbia Preparatory School here. His will created a contest when it was found that the major portion of his $400,000 estate was left to Miss Katherine R. Pike, who was for many years secretary of the school.

The will provided for bequests totaling $40,000 to certain relatives, and left the balance of the estate, estimated at $360,000 to Miss Pike. Attorneys Douglas, Obear & Douglas, and Edmund D. Campbell represented the relatives, and Frank P. Nesbit was attorney for George W. White and Miss Pike, who were named executors in the will.

Traffic Count to Begin At Highway Bridge

The coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday decided to begin its traffic count on the District side of Highway Bridge tomorrow morning and to continue it over the week-end.

William A. Van Duzer, newly appointed traffic director, will have charge of the survey, which was ordered by the commission to determine the best solution for the traffic congestion at the intersections of the Potomac Park roadways and Fourteenth street. The staff of the Park and Planning Commission, the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks and the District Highway Department will cooperate in making the count.

Is There a LOAFER in your kitchen?

Would you pay a cook who would only do the cooking and leave you to set the table and wash the dishes? That would be bad business. Yet right now, unless you have a modern gas range, you are doing the same thing by maintaining a stove that is only doing a small part of its job. The obsolete stove simply supplies the heat. It leaves you to watch the oven, adjust the heat and fuss with the broiler while you're busy preparing the meal.

A MODERN range regulates the heat AUTOMATICALLY. Insulation keeps the heat where it belongs, in the oven, and keeps your kitchen delightfully cool all summer long. The new Oriole Console models are equipped with Oven Heat Control—a tiny dial measures the temperature to suit the foods that are being cooked. All the newer models have a dozen handy devices that speed up cooking and save on heat. They are perfect gems of beauty too—styles that modernize any kitchen.

Drop in at any of our display rooms to choose your model. A small down payment and the balance on liberal terms will put an Oriole Console Range in your home, with no extra charge for financing. We will allow you $10 on your old range. And while you are about it, ask about our "Bargain Basement."

Our show rooms are open until 9 o'clock every evening except Sunday.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sernesky

JOLLY SCANDINAVIANS.
THE EARLY SCANDINAVIANS OBSERVED THE NEW YEAR WITH MUCH FEASTING AND JOLLITY. THEY RECKONED THEIR AGE BY SO MANY NEW YEARS OR JOLIAS AS THEY CALLED THEM, BECAUSE OF THE CONNECTION BETWEEN JOLIA AND FESTIVITY, THE WORD WHICH INDICATED THEIR NEW YEAR WAS TURNED INTO OUR WORD "JOLLY."

HOW ALPACA CLOTH BEGAN.
TITUS SALT, A LIVERPOOL MANUFACTURER, DISCOVERED SOME BALES OF ALPACA IN THE CELLAR OF A BROKER. THE BROKER EXPLAINED IT WAS WORTHLESS MATERIAL WHICH HIS SHIPS USED AS BALLAST. TITUS RETURNED AND BOUGHT ALL THE BROKER HAD. MAKING OF IT ALPACA WOOL CLOTH. THIS WAS IN 1844.
"GONE TO JERICHO"
ONE OF HENRY VIII'S HOUSES WAS JERICHO, IN ESSEX. WHEN HIS MAJESTY WAS DESIROUS OF NOT BEING DISTURBED, PEOPLE WERE TOLD THAT HE HAD GONE TO JERICHO. GRADUALLY THE EXPRESSION CAME TO BE USED FOR A PLACE OF CONCEALMENT OR BANISHMENT.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

SPRING DISORDERS.

THIS story was given me by a physician now living in the peninsular part of Michigan, though it is based principally on things that he learned when he was a young man in Saginaw and Detroit. Those were the early lumbering days. Certain men living in Saginaw and Detroit owned large tracts of uncut timberland. They were hard working men of great endurance and during these early days they were accumulating the millions which they enjoyed, or otherwise, after they had grown old and then passed on to others to enjoy or otherwise. These men would go into the woods in the fall and stay there, living on lumber camp grub until the snow had disappeared in the spring. They would then return to their homes and families in the cities.

They always came out with skin eruptions. They were spoken of as scratchers. They attributed their trouble to minerals in the water, but the young men of the doctor's group discounted the explanation. They felt certain that what these men had was catching, and the safe plan was to keep away from them. It may have been bugs, the itch or something else, but whatever it was all the wise boys kept on the other side of the street until the scratchers got cleaned up.

Now, the doctor knew what the trouble was and how unnecessary were the precautions he and his friends had taken. These men lived on meat, bread and coffee in the lumber camps. There was plenty of it, and the food was heartening. It "stuck to the ribs," but it was short on vitamins.

After living on it for several months the men developed mild scurvy, mild beriberi and other vitamin-deficiency diseases, and these caused the skin trouble. When they got back home their appetites craved a different diet and they switched to greens of all kinds—salads, fruits, vegetables. Before long they could go to a reception without scratching while being greeted by the hostess.

This informant was 50, or maybe 75 per cent right. At that, goodly part of the skin trouble was due to parasites, large or small. Much of reputation of the sulphur bath springs was earned in the early day when much of the skin troubles was due to parasites, against which sulphur baths work satisfactorily. The embroyo millionaire lumberman who ate greens at meals and then took sulphur baths met about all the indications.

ILL OF TUBERCULOSIS 9 MONTHS.

J. L. writes:

1. I have been sick with tuberculosis for about nine months and have gained very little. The infection is on the left side. Is there any danger of the right side being affected also?
2. Is one quart of milk enough?

REPLY.

1. Yes, it probably will be.
2. Yes. I presume you get a properly balanced diet.

HOW TO ROUT LICE.

Mrs. J. C. D. writes:

I think it would be selfish if I did not tell you how wonderful oil of sassafras is for head lice.

Dip the finger tips in the oil and rub in the hair. The lice drop right away. If one does this a few times a week the lice will all be gone.

Two Playgrounds Asked In North Washington

The North Washington Joint Commission, representing about fourteen sectional groups, appeared before Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, yesterday to ask that two playgrounds be located in the northern section of the Capital.

The delegation, which was headed by H. W. Mariatt, asked for one playground adjacent to the Macfarland school tract, at Thirteenth and Upshur streets, and another near Hyatt place and Park road. Col. Grant said he would take the requests to the joint recreational committee.

DEFEAT AT BOSTON, 6-4, DROPS NATS TO 3RD PLACE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

CLARK C. GRIFFITH, prominent Washington fan, was interrogated on the point of the seventeen straight wins that the Athletics had compiled just before the interruption yesterday at the hands of the Yankees. Mr. Griffith, with admirable outward calm, replied, "I am not alarmed."

This column is unacquainted with the exact amount of ominousness that is required to alarm Mr. Griffith with respect to the welfare of the Washington team and cause him to reflect at this early date on the discrepancy between a world's series check and second or third place money. He can, if he likes, point with justifiable pride to the .585 pace which the Nats are sporting thus far this season and which is calculated to deposit them near the top if maintained.

My own reaction to the Philadelphia winning streak, which is not one whit clouded by the victory of the Yankees yesterday, is contained in the daring and original thought that the A's no longer can be underestimated nor their five-game lead minimized as unimportant.

Doubts Are Dispelled.

The victorious sweep of the Mackmen through the West, during which they contributed fourteen of their successive triumphs, served to clarify a few doubtful points that admirers of the Nats were prone to mention when the subject of pennant winners was brought up. Chief of which is the reputed unsteadiness and numerical shortcomings of the Philadelphia pitching staff.

On that tour of the West and since the A's arrived East, Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg contrived to turn in four victories each, and Ed Rommel and Roy Mahaffey accounted for a pair apiece. Inasmuch as it was the club's pitching rather than the team's slugging, as witnessed by the .277 average, that carried the champions along at their terrific pace, Connie Mack may be excused if he does not share the doubt that his staff will stand up. The chief misgivings expressed concerning the durability of the Macks' pitching staff were expressed, I am constrained to observe, here in Washington, where it might be minimized on the admissible evidence that the wish may be father to the thought.

Twin Bill Bugaboo.

There has been also a pronounced hue and cry engendered by reason of the fact that the Athletics have nine postponed games which must be disposed of in as many doubleheaders, and thes etwin bills have been set up by Washington fans and correspondents as an added bugabee and cause for concern for the canny Mack.

Mack met his first double-header test on Monday, against the Yankees, and the only disastrous effects of same was felt by the Yankees, Nats and other clubs that may aspire to the league lead for the champions took both games with no strain whatsoever on the pitching staff, using Grove in one battle and Mahaffey bogey man at the first asking.

In another, debunking the twin-bill There are more double-headers to come, of course, but Mack, in an interview in Philadelphia this week, presented his case with a great deal of logic, admitting that even if only three of his pitchers were considered good risks, the subtraction of its three best pitchers from the staff of any other club would leave that club no better fortified than the Mackmen.

Tribute to Mack.

Mack has been hearing tales of his pitching shortage for two seasons now, and if his pitching situation is as acute as it is painted by his illwishers, the club's success is an even greater tribute to the 68-year-old boss' managerial acumen.

Mack has always been able to produce pitching strength in a pinch even if he has had to employ Lefty Grove five days a week, as he has done. At the start of the season, with only Grove and Earnshaw popularly supposed to be worthy of a champions' staff, the Macks appeared to be in sore straights for mound talent, but along came Walberg in an impressive come-back that surpassed even his best form, and Mack was fortified with a three-man staff that is surely defying superiority by any one club.

With the Mackmen hitting only .277 as a team and already established in a five-game lead, even the alarmists may be pardoned for mild alarm.

Old Liners Make Trip Unknown to Penn Nine

Maryland University's baseball players were taken for a ride yesterday and when they got on the spot found their foes engaged in combat with another party, resulting in their returning to College Park without having donned a uniform.

In other words, the Old Liners had a ball game—or thought they had—scheduled with the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, but when they reached the City of Brotherly Love learned that Penn did not expect them, but instead was scheduled to meet Lafayette. Coach Burton Shipley, who with his players watched the Quakers and Leopards fight it out, stated last night he was unable to say how the schedule mix-up happened.

On Saturday Maryland is billed to tackle Army at West Point and Shipley vows that game will be played, barring bad weather.

2 Davis Cup Teams Drill For Test

U. S. and Argentine Squads Work Hard at Chevy Chase.

Shields-Wood Defeat Mangin-Sutter in Doubles Practcie.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IT will be a difficult task today to drawn the line of demarcation between the social and tennis activities of the Argentine and American Davis Cup teams, now housed at the Chevy Chase Club awaiting the opening of play in the first North vs. South America Zone match ever played, to be contested Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Yesterday marked the first and final practice of the young American team, which arrived Monday night from the conquest of the Canadian team in Montreal. Sandwiched between the morning and afternoon practices of the American team, the confident Argentine crew staged its final serious drill under the direction of Edwin C. French, nonplaying captain.

Bernon S. Prentice, more than pleased with the condition of his team, yesterday stated that the United States doubles selection was still in doubt, and would not be named until just before Friday's match. Prentice watched diligently as Shields and Wood combined to nose out Mangin and Sutter. All four players were hitting the ball hard, Wood's play being particularly impressive.

Boyd Impressive In Practice.

The America is in for a real battle this week-end was strongly demonstrated to a small gallery yesterday as Ronaldo Boyd, Argentina's giant red-haired player, took the court after the conclusion of the practice by the Americans. Boyd had all the speed of America's hopes, and perhaps a little more accuracy. He is indeed to be watched.

Pass, Miss Hinderliter Bureau Golf Winners

Leo Pass and Miss Annabel Hinderliter captured low medals in the annual Veterans' Administration Golf Club qualifying round, run off on the Army and Navy Golf Club's course. Pass topped a large field with a score of 81, while Miss Hinderliter won over Mrs. Thomas Williamson with a score of 112 to 126.

U. C. Deike and Richard Bishop tied at 84 for runner-up position to Pass.

The Veterans' Bureau entrant in the interdepartmental tournament, to be held June 1 and 2 at Indian Spring, will be made up of Pass, Bishop, Deike and Norman Hall in class A. Class B team will be composed of Frank Girardi, Leonard Nelson, William Scott and J. J. Crowley. Alternates are Robert Pritchard, Walter Goodwin, Nat Laden and Paschal Sherman.

Uhle Pitches and Bats Tigers to 4-2 Victory

Chicago, May 26 (A.P.).—George Uhle gave only two runs today and batted in that many himself as the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 2, in the series opener.

Each team made eleven hits, but the Tigers had one big inning off Faber and it was enough. After the Sox scored in the first the Tigers came back in the third to take the lead. Doljack doubled, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Akers' fly. Then Hayworth walked and Uhle hit a home run into the left field stands. Both teams counted once more in the later innings.

VAN RYN AND LOTT WIN IN FRANCE

Holders of Doubles Crown Advance in Singles.

AUTEUIL, France, May 26 (A.P.).—George Lott, jr., and John Van Ryn, already holders of the French doubles championships and cofavorites with Jean Borotra for the singles title, advanced today in that phase of the French hard court championship play.

Lott won easily from Charles Kingsley, the former Cambridge player, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4, winning eleven straight games before giving the Englishman one, but Van Ryn gave his supporters several uneasy moments before finally defeating Andre Merlin, 19-year-old Frenchman, 4—6, 8—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Kingsley was expected to give Lott a real battle in their second round contest, but was no match for the American. Merlin, one of the most promising of the younger French players, was not thought to have had enough experience for Van Ryn, and although this proved to be the case, he took one set and made the Philadelphian scramble for every point right up to the final one.

2 U. S. Women Win And Two Lose.

Van Ryn meets the Czechoslovak Hans Menzel tomorrow, while Lott plays the promising German youngster, I. von Kramm.

Among the women players, the day did not prove out so well for the United States. Miss Helen Jacobs easily defeated Mme. Contoalavos Nicglopoulo, 6—0, 6—3, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian, won from 19-year-old Hedwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland, 2—6, 9—7, 6—3, but the other two Americans both lost. Miss Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, was eliminated by Mlle. Ida Adamoff, rising young French star, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, and her fellow doubles player, Miss Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., lost to Joan Ridley, of England, 6—0, 6—3.

Hilltop to Send Five To Title Track Meet

Hilltop authorities yesterday authorized the appearance of five Georgetown University runners in the intercollegiate track and field championships at Philadelphia Friday and Saturday. Those named to compete are Al Kelly, in the century dash; Artie Briggs and Chuck Carlin, 220; Vic Burke, quarter-mile, and Jim Kelly, hilf-mile. Al Kelly is conceded the Hilltop's best bet to score. Lats year, in the same meet, Georgetown failed to qualify a man for the finals.

Bat Battalino, Flat-Footed, Defenseless, Unorthodox, All Wrong, Like Simmons

NEW YORK, May 26—To give the little devil his due, which is a long time overdue, this Bat Battalino, the featherweight champion from Hartford, Conn., dominates his class as no other champion does in the prize-fight business. Twice in the last few months he has come down to New York, attended by his following of home-town rooters, and old-fashioned claque, who bet their wages on him at the advantageous market price, and licked two of the most stylish featherweights of his time, Kid Chocolate and Fidel La Barba.

It is all very puzzling. Battalino doesn't fight right. Benny Leonard, a venerable old master of about 36 years, sat in the press row last Friday night, he being an old journalist himself, rendered erstwhile by the enemies of the New York World, and writhed himself inside out as he watched Battalino advance constantly against La Barba, flat-footed and with hands swinging at the level of his hips, to outpunch the bright young collegian through all but four of the fifteen rounds. He provided no coverage for his jaw, but depended on a bobbing style of escape and made it work, and the only conclusion was that Bat Battalino was so terribly bad that he was very good.

The general prejudice against Battalino arose from the fact that the fight in which he won the championship from Andre Routis, the Frenchman, was one of those things best described as one of those things. Routis was not much good and the boys who operated him as a pugilistic property, realizing this, managed him with great care until they reckoned that he has paid all the dividends he could be made to pay on their general investment.

Then they took him up to Connecticut one night and let him go against Battalino, who up to that time was a Mr. Nobody of nowhere-at-all, in a bout under championship conditions. Among the principal stockholders in the Routis property when the athletes entered the ring that evening was Mr. Pete (Hotfoot) Riley, a mischievous character who has no illusions whatever about the purposes of pugilism or the sanctity of championships, and when the contest was over Mr. Riley, with the bland innocence of the saloonkeeper who won his own turkey raffle, announced that he had acquired, for

Driver and Mechanic Die In Spill in Speedway Trial

INDIANAPOLIS, Inc., May 26 (A.P.).—A driver and his mechanic were dashed to death today, but their fate failed to retard the speed of a score of others seeking to qualify their cars for the annual 500-mile Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis Speedway.

Two Pennsylvanians, Joe Caccia, 32, of Bryn Mawr, and Clarence Grover, 23, of Haverford, were those who met death.

Caccia, the pilot, was sending his car around the treacherous southeast curve at a speed estimated at 104 miles an hour. There was a quick skid. The car headed up the banked curve, crashed through a concrete retaining wall, struck a tree outside the track, and fell to the ground in flames. Both driver and mechanic were thrown clear of the machine as it hurtled through the air, but the blazing wreckage fell near them. The flames enveloped their bodies.

Caccia had piloted a car in previous races at the local track and at other speedways and was considered an experienced driver. Grover only recently left Haverford, thrilled at a chance to ride in the big race. He had no experience as a race driver.

It was difficult to determine the cause of the accident. Some expressed

Yankees Halt Mackmen by 6-2 Win

Gomez Checks Streak at 17 Straight With 7-Hit Effort.

Rommel Driven Out; Ruth and Simmons Hit Homers.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26 (A.P.).—The left-handed pitching of Vernon Gomez, backed by some timely hitting on the part of the New York Yankees, finally stopped the Athletics' winning streak today after seventeen successive victories. Gomez held the champions to seven hits to win, 6 to 2. He allowed only one run until the ninth inning, when Al Simmons connected with his ninth home run of the season.

Eddie Rommel started for Philadelphia, but was driven to cover when the Yankees scored three times in the second inning on a pair of singles and Bill Dickey's triple. Babe Ruth hit his seventh homer of the year off Hank McDonald with the bases empty in the sixth.

Today's defeat was the first the Athletics had suffered since May 4, when they lost to Boston.

Macks Fail to Reach White Sox's Record.

The loss interrupted the attempt of the Athletics to reach the record of nineteen consecutive games won by the Chicago White Sox in 1906. Both Earl Combs and Al Simmons prolonged their hitting streaks. Combs, with one hit in five appearances, reached his twenty-fifth game safely, and Simmons, with two hits in four attempts, including his homer, stretched his streak to twenty-four games.

Card Rally in Eighth Defeats Pirates, 11-9

St. Louis, Mo., May 26 (A.P.).—Heavy hitting in the eighth inning was the deciding factor in the St. Louis Cardinals' victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by a score of 11 to 9. Winning today's game, the first at home after a long road trip, the Cardinals retain by a scant margin of four points their hold on top place in the National League, the double victory of New York narrowing the margin.

Jones Credited With First Defeat as Sox, Outhit, Triumph.

Russell Checks Nats; Boston Gets Early Lead of 4 Runs.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BOSTON, Mass., May 26.—"Old Sol" and Sam Rice collaborated in making the best play for the Red Sox here this afternoon, the former shining in the latter's eyes in the fifth, and the result was the scoring of the Boston runs which represented the Beaneaters' winning margin in their 6-to-4 triumph over the Nationals.

As a result, the veteran pitcher, Sad Sam Jones was charged with his first loss of the season; the youngster, Jack Russell, was credited with his third successive victory over the Nats, the series count between the two teams was evened at 4-all, and the loss sent Johnson's charges back into third place when coupled with the Yankees' stunt of snapping the Athletics' winning string at seventeen straight.

Sun in Rice's Eyes Helps Red Sox.

If the issue had been decided on the number of hits garnered, the Nats would have won, 13 to 10; but it is runs that count, and two of these came after Rice had a chance to turn in the third out of the fifth round. With two dead and Rothrock on first as the result of a single, Van Camp lifted to right. Rice was set to catch the ball when he suddenly lost it in the sun and it went as a triple. Rothrock, of course, scored and Webb doubled Van Camp home before the next out was recorded.

Jones did not get away well, as hits by Rothrock and Van Camp and Webb's long fly netted an alien run in the first, and Pickering's double, a sacrifice, and Oliver's long fly were good for another in the third. It took the two gift markers in the fifth finally to wake up the Johnsons

Four runs behind, they proceeded to overtake the enemy in the next three sessions at the tee. Manush opened the sixth with a liner. Rhyne grabbed it with one hand, dropped it, and then claimed a momentary catch, which first was allowed and then was disallowed. It went as a single and Cronin tripled the run over, counting a moment later while Rothrock was tossing out West at first.

West's Speed Aids In Tying Score.

Myer doubled starting the seventh and Sam Rice scored him with a single through the box. Then came the eighth and the tied string. West's speed afoot gave him a single on a tap through Russell and he carried on to third a moment later when no one covered to take Ruel's throw on a steal. Bluege's fly to left was deep enough to permit West to check in with the run which made it 4-all.

As things turned out, this did not mean anything. Opening the home half, Jones issued his first pass of the game, Van Camp drawing it. Webb then scored him with a double off the left field wall and Pickering followed with another hit of the same dimensions and the Nats were 2 down again. They managed to get the tying runs on the sacks in their ninth but both were left.

Manush with three hits and Bluege and West, with two each, led the Washington attack, in which every member of the cast except Pinch Hitter Hargrave participated, while Rothrock, Van Camp, Webb and Pickering formed a big four which was credited with all of the alien bingles.

2 SOUTHPAWS HURL TODAY FOR NATS

Brown and Fischer to Oppose Boston in Double Bill.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., May 26.—Manager Walter Johnson's charges play their third double-header of the season here tomorrow, the bargain-day bill with the Red Sox having been made possible by imaginary rain which led to the postponement of the single game scheduled yesterday.

In the two previous twin bills, the Nationals did no better than split even. In the first of these, at the beginning of the present trip, they took the opener from the Bean Eaters and were leading with none on and two out in the ninth in the second only to have Pitcher Irving Hadley weaken and let the Sox tie the string and then to win out in the tenth. Their other loss, at St. Louis, was in the first game of the pair, and it snapped a winning streak of six in a row.

Tomorrow, however, the Johnsons are determined to do no dividing. With the leading Mackmen going like a house afire, the Nats realize that they must keep on winning, too, if they hope to keep in the running in the flag race. Two southpaws will bear the Washington pitching burden, Lloyd Brown and Carl Fischer, with Milton Gaston and Horace Lisenbee, two former Nats, expected to fling for the Sox.

Altrock and Schacht Perform in N. Y.

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht deserted the Nats today for the cause of charity. They hopped over to New York to do their stuff in Madison Square Garden tonight in a Salvation Army benefit, which offers what is said to be the greatest galaxy of theatrical and movie stars ever gathered together on a single program. The comedians will be back here in time to amuse the cash customers at tomorrow's game.

Pitcher Irving "Bump" Hadley spent this morning in a dentist's chair, having a pus sac removed from one of his gums. While not feeling any too spry, he was in uniform for pregame batting practice.

Although no error was charged, had Buddy Myer properly played Manush's return peg of Van Camp's single the Red Sox might not have scored their run in the first. The blow sent Rothrock to third and the batter would have been trapped between first and second had Myer not have dropped the throw-in. This would have caused a run-down, with Rothrock being compelled to try to score on it and probably trapped in the attempt. As it was, Van Camp was able to hustle back to first with all hands safe.

Joe Kuhel went almost to the stands near the Sox dugout to make a pretty grab of Rhyne's pop foul opening the home third.

Manush scored a hole-in-one in the fourth when a foul from his bat landed cleanly in a bucket of water in the press box on top of the stands.

An argument regarding the much disputed momentary catch came up

Arlett Leads Phillies In Defeat of Robins

Brooklyn, May 26 (A.P.).—The Phillies downed Brooklyn, 8 to 4, today in the sixth and final game of their series to gain an even break at three games each.

The Phils, led by Buzz Arlett, pounded four Brooklyn pitchers for thirteen hits. Arlett clouted three doubles and a single. Pinky Whitney hit a homer and drove in half the Philadelphia runs.

M'LARNIN 8-5 FAVORITE OVER PETROLLE TONIGHT

Slugging Celt Is Bent on Revenge

Anxious to Wipe Out Blot of Beating Last Fall.

Bud Taylor Only Has Repeated a Victory Over McLarnin.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, May 26 (A.P.).—Jimmy McLarnin, the smiling Celt from Vancouver, sets out in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to prove again that beating him once is an accident, twice almost an impossibility.

Sprinkled through the Irish dynamiter's career are several defeats, including the ten-round pasting Billy Petrolle gave him in the Garden last November, but only once does the record show the winner coming back to repeat the trick. Bud Taylor, the Terre Haute blond, whipped Jimmy three times when they were both bantamweights, but Bud has passed along now, and so far the secret seems to have gone with him.

Petrolle, rugged, battle-scarred veteran, will test the theory for McLarnin again tomorrow night in an attempt to make it two in a row. Sammy Mandell, when he was champion of the lightweights, turned Jimmy back once, but couldn't do it again. Ray Miller even knocked McLarnin out in eight rounds, but when they had met again Jimmy knew why he had lost and the decision was reversed. On this comeback record, as much as anything else, are based the odds favoring McLarnin at 8 to 5 tomorrow night.

Petrolle Administered Thorough Beating.

Petrolle's conquest of the outstanding welterweight contender last fall, after spotting him a half dozen pounds in weight, left nothing to the imagination. He battered McLarnin all over the Garden ring, floored him twice, and had him reeling and helpless a half dozen times. Only the superlative courage of the grinning Irishman kept him on his feet, struggling to the finish.

Although Petrolle, despite his decisive victory in the first match, will enter the ring the under dog in the wagering, he has many supporters. One school of thought has developed that preaches the belief McLarnin, one of the deadliest punchers in the ring, can be beaten by any good left-hand socker. Petrolle, they insist, is all that, and the theory that McLarnin can't be whipped twice is fine until the first bell rings.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, May 26.—Enjoying a return of clear weather and the racing strip in fast condition, the Washington Park course has arranged a well-balanced program for the midweek patrons. The bright spot on the card attracted a field of six sterling milers, which will contest the issue. This event is an allowance affair for 3-year-olds exclusively, and carries a $1,600 purse.

Seven high class platers have been entered in the one-mile gallop of the second race, which will support the feature. An evenly matched field of juveniles will match strides in the five-furlong dash of the third, with remainder of the card devoted to the cheaper grade of thoroughbreds.

In the main attraction the Shady Brook Farm's fleet In Memoriam colt, PITTSBURGHER, which ran creditably in the Derby, is making his first appearance since the classic. The colt has trained well since his arrival and with an impost of 110 pounds should lead his five rivals around the mile route. SCOTLAND'S GLORY, a double winner at the Downs course, is moving up a notch in this company, but has turned in some fast victories and is given the place call. BURNING UP raced consistently at Aurora and is reported in condition. The Black Tony colt is favored for the minor award.

The secondary feature, which received seven entries in the overnight one-mile event, brings together an evenly matchd group of platers. SUITOR, from the E. J. Lehmann Stable, has attained her best form and figures to annex the purse. JEAN LAFITTE and WILLA will contest the issue with the top selection. SKIRL, from the Whitney string, is another possibility.

FIRST RACE—Fourteen juvenile platers will face the barrier in the opening dash over the 5 furlongs distance. ESCOSTAR has shown the most consistent form of these 2-year-olds and is selected for premier honors. The Superior Stable's fleet gelding scored impressively in his last winning effort at Aurora and should encounter little trouble. The contender, MENDELL, is highly regarded and may prove troublesome. SIBERIA, from the G. D. Widener string, turned in a brilliant four-panel spin in 0:48 3-5 as a final conditioner. ETCETERA will appreciate the fast track.

THIRD RACE—In the 5 furlongs of the third event, nine speedy juvenile fillies will parade to the post, with NEVADA QUEEN, 2-year-old champion at Agua Caliente, as the logical choice. This youngster scored several victories during the winter and is reported in fit condition to continue her campaign in the Midwest. AT SUNRISE, from the E. B. McLean string, has battled the top-notchers and will furnish keen opposition. PRINCESS IVRE was beaten by the latter and figures to go as well here.

FIFTH RACE—A limit list of twenty of the older horses in training will match strides over the mile and an eighth route of the fifth. TANIST was beaten a neck last start and figures to improve. RUSHING is well suited by the conditions. CURTSEY has disappointed lately, but is capable of a better effort.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth heat brings together a field of fifteen 3-year-old platers in a gallop at a mile and an eighth. TACK, carrying the Greentree silks, is a top-notch router and should lead this field to the wire. TRANSGRESSION was nosed out on opening day and may prove dangerous. LADY MESSENGER runs best in the mud, but should last to save the show.

SEVENTH RACE—In the final event another group of twenty platers will battle it out over the 9 furlongs distance. HARPOON is a steady plater and holds an edge over this band of seasoned campaigners. LANSQUENET scored over a heavy track last start, but displayed much speed and is favored for the runner-up position.

Sweep All Is Winner Of Chicago Feature

Chicago, May 26 (A.P.).—Charles T. Fisher's Sweep All, runner-up to Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby, made his bow at Washington Park today with a victory in the $1,500 Olympia Fields Handicap, an overweight affair.

Sweep All, the favorite, won impressively over Nostaw, with Maya third. Bargello was the only other starter. Sweep All paid $4.22 to win and $3.10 to place, while Nostaw paid $5.78 to place.

The long-shot seekers cashed in on Flying in the first race at the rate of $116.18 to win, $60.90 to place and $34.84 to show. Flying, racing in the colors of Mrs. William Ziegler, jr., of New York, became the longest-priced 2-year-old in Chicago turf history.

COMEDALISTS SURVIVE IN D. C. WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

Mrs. Haynes Extended to 20th Hole

Defeats Miss Hunter After Turning First Nine All Even.

Mrs. Meckley Wins From Mrs. Cameron After Trailing.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

MRS. BETTY MECKLEY, the present District women's golf champion, and Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, who were the medalists in a tie at 88 on the first day of the annual District women's golf championship tournament now being played on the course of the Chevy Chase Club, were among the survivors in the first round of match play in the championship flight yesterday, but both of them had to struggle to retain their positions.

Mrs. Meckley, who played against Mrs. L. O. Cameron, was 1 down at the turn and 2 down when the tenth hole had been played. By a succession of helpful 4s, six holes out of the inward nine were played in 4s, she was 1 up at the seventeenth tee. Although she was on the seventeenth green with her second shot, while Mrs. Cameron was compelled to play her second out of a trap, Mrs. Meckley secured only a half, for Mrs. Cameron played her ball strongly to the green and then ran down a long half-stymie putt for a 4. Mrs. Meckley won by 2 up when she scored another 4 on the home hole.

Mrs. Haynes Forced To 20th Hole.

Mrs. Haynes' battle against Miss Dorothy Hunter went two extra holes. The pair were all even at the turn but Mrs. Haynes became 2 up by winning the eleventh and twelfth. Miss Hunter, with a birdie 2 on the thirteenth, reduced the lead to 1 up and the match was evened when Mrs. Haynes was twice in traps on the seventeenth, scoring a 7 to Miss Hunter's 6. Then the eighteenth and nineteenth holes were halved, Mrs. Haynes finally winning the twentieth by carrying the green with her second and holing out in two putts for a par 4.

There were no serious upsets during the day. The players who lost their first-round matches yesterday continue in the consolation round this morning. The summary:

BATTALINO IS "JOKE," LIKE AL SIMMONS

cash and stamps, the entire rights to the property known at Bat Battalino, now featherweight champion of the world.

This kicked up a bit of scandal, but in a business almost as scandalous as politics no one outrage can be expected to hold attention for more than ten days, so the matter was not pressed, and after a short time Battalino came to be accepted as the official featherweight champion, with a certain tongue-in-cheek reservation. That is to say, he was held in about the same respect that Giovanni Panica, better known as Johnny (Slot Machine) Wilson, and Al McCoy enjoyed as middleweight champions and Jimmy Goodrich enjoyed as lightweight champion and Tommy Burns as heavyweight champion. He was another cheese champion, to be endured until such time as he inadvertently accepted a championship bout with some fairly good preliminary boy and was licked.

Many commonplace fighters have beaten Battalino since he won or, let us say, acquired the title, but always in fights that were ordinary potboilers under weight stipulations that withheld his title from competition. These beatings confirmed the impression of lower mediocrity and naturally, when the boy came down to New York last winter to defend the title for the first time against Chocolate, a fast little boxer and fairly firm hitter, it was presumed that the championship was about to be taken out of pawn again.

Assumes No Rights To Chocolate.

Possibly, if Chocolate had won that night, Mr. Riley would have announced with the official reading of the decision that he had taken over the Chocolate property, but the question didn't arise, for Battalino won the scrap, and the best that any one could do in the way of an answer to the puzzle was a theory that Chocolate had been fought to exhaustion at an immature age.

There was no such notion to calm the confusion of the trade last Friday evening, for La Barba was strong and well covered with meat at his natural weight, while Battalino, after hard training, was pale and stringy, all the little muscles and vertebrae showing boldly beneath the tight-drawn hide in every gesture under the lights. Yet it was La Barba who sagged into clinches throughout the fight to avoid the question that Battalino was always raising, and La Barba who faded from fatigue toward the end as Battalino kept on walking in with his wide-legged stance, soliciting trouble with his exposed chin and winning his fight from the young man who was supposed to be the best featherweight in the world.

Battalino fights the way Al (Foot-in-the-Bucket) Simmons of the Athletics hits the ball, and Mr. Simmons is so wrong that he's absolutely right.

in the Nats' sixth when Manush lined to Rhyne, who made a fine leaping gloved-hand grab of the ball, but then dropped it. At first Umpire-in-Chief Dick Nallin ruled it a legal catch, but Umpire Brick Owen came up from back of first, presumably reminded him of instructions issued by President Barnard before the season started that balls must be held, and Manush was credited with a hit and allowed to remain on first.

As there were no Nats on base at the time and Rhyne had nothing else to do but hold the ball, no throw being necessary, there is no question but what the catch was not a legal one and that the umpire's final ruling was a fair one.

Jack Rothrock seems to have beaten Bobby Reeves out for second base berth on the Red Sox. The former Nat, however is earning his money pitching to batters in the pregame drills.

The Sox second base combination was asleep after West had singled opening the eighth, and when the runner tried to steal neither covered. As a result, Catcher Muddy Ruel, although making a good throw to the base, was charged with an error.

Pinky Hargrave pinch-hit for Jones opening the ninth, but he was no bargain, as Russell struck him out.

Wilson announced the Municipal Swimming Pools would be opened to the public on Saturday for the summer season. Guards appointed are Paul Travers, Frank Backus and Dave Henderson. It was also stated that a number of aquatic meets will be featured this season, and prizes will be awarded to the winners in all divisions.

The playgrounds will be located at the following places: Alexandria High School, George Mason High School, Washington School, Queen Street, First Ward, on the river front. Two playground instructors, Mrs. Les B. Ryder and Mrs. Ruth Roseberry, have been appointed.

Wilson stated today he planned to sponsor baseball leagues for insect, junior and senior teams. Tennis and horseshoe tournaments will also be a feature, and the latter part of August a municipal field day, featuring athletics from all of the city playgrounds, will be staged.

Contract With Garden Is Denied by Carnera

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, through his legal department, filed an answer today to the suit for a permanent injunction brought against him by the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois. A temporary injunction restraining Carnera from fighting Jack at Ebbetts Field June 10 was issued yesterday by Federal Judge John C. Knox.

The Italian detailed in his answer alla the complaints against an alleged contract with the Garden that he mentioned in hi sdefense against the plea for tempoarry injunction. In addition, he denied he ever signed any contract with the Garden January 13, 1931, binding him to fight in September the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling bout in Cleveland, July 3.

Maloney Knocked Out By Schaaf in Round

Boston, Mass., May 26 (A.P.).—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, knocked out Jimmy Maloney, his home town rival, in the first round of their 10-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight. Schaaf weighed 202½, a pound more than Maloney.

The knockout came after about a minute of fighting. Schaaf edged Maloney into a neutral corner and belted him with short but terrific lefts and rights to the jaw. The first of these heavy blows opened a wide cut on Maloney's upper lip and he crashed to the canvas after Schaaf landed solidly for the eighth time. Maloney was about to get on his knees when Referee Johnny Brassil counted ten.

NAVY AWAITS BIG SPORTS PROGRAM

Rifle, Baseball and Lacrosse Meets to Attract Visitors.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 26.—The semiwind-up of the spring sports program at the Naval Academy comes tomorrow when the varsity baseball team takes the field against Mount St. Mary's College of Emmittsburg, Md., and the tennis team will be pitted against University of Pennsylvania racqueters. The Middies have passed through a highly successful season on the courts and are keyed to take the measure of the Red and Blue representatives, something they have not been able to accomplish in thirteen years.

With crowds of visitors from all sections of the country assembling here for the opening of June week festivities on Friday, the final sport card to be presented Saturday afternoon promises to draw the greatest throng of the season, and the high caliber of events to be staged is another drawing power. Of outstanding interest in collegiate circles will be the lacrosse game between University of Maryland and Navy. Maryland has lost only to the crack St. John's College twelve, while the Middies are undefeated. The outcome of the battle will have material bearing upon the collegiate championship.

On the field and track, the Middies will stack up against the undefeated Ohio State group.

Trainer Returns $30,000 Colt As Unsound 3 Days After Sale

NEW YORK, May 26 (A.P.).—Caerleon, 2-year-old son of Sir Gallahad III, bought on Saturday by the Wheatley Stable for $30,000 at the dispersal sale of the late Gifford A. Cochran Stable, today was returned to the estate because Trainer James Fitzsimmons considered him not sound of wind.

Fitzsimmons had the colt out for a workout at Aqueduct yesterday and noticed he made an unusual breathing noise. He at once advised H. C. Phipps of the Wheatley Stable to return the colt, believing the juvenile runner might be suffering from a throat affliction.

The return of the colt recalls the famous Playfellow case of several years ago, when Harry F. Sinclair sued and recovered the $100,000 paid the Quincy Stable on the ground the horse was a wind-sucker. Fitzsimmons was training Playfellow at the time and did not consider him unsound.

Successful Net Season For Danville M. I. Team

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 26.—The curtain came down yesterday on one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by a Danville Military Institute Tennis Team, as Hargrave Military Academy, of Chatham, was defeated, 3-0. It was the sixth consecutive victory of Danville and kept clean the year's record.

Coached by Capt. Robert D. England, a former University of Virginia player, the team this year was composed of green material moulded around Kerr Evans, junior champion of Danville. Among Danville's victims this year were Durham (N. C.) High, 6-0 and 5-1; Oak Ridge (N. C.) Military Institute, 4-3; Hargrave, 4-1 and 3-0, and Virginia Episcopal, 5-2.

Tennis is a major sport at D. M. I. and appropriate letters will be awarded.

An out-of-town game for either Saturday or Sunday, or both, is desired by the Palisade A. C. Call Manager Hager at Cleveland 2133-J, or write him at 5040 Dana place northwest.

STOCK LEADERS GAIN AFTER BEAR BUYING

Questionnaire Seeking Data on Shorts Causes Dip; Steel Up Point.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—The chief influence in the share market today was the stock exchange's questionnaire seeking information on the extent and identity of the short interest.

Announcement of this action, the first of its kind since November, 1929, was made before the opening. Although covering did not begin until the market had had an early dip coincident with news that two smaller London exchange firms had failed, repurchases by shorts gave the list a much stronger tone during most of the forenoon and afternoon. Toward the close renewed weakness appeared, and final prices were mixed; however, most of the leaders finished higher.

At one time or another many prominent stocks touched new lows. Among them were U. S. Steel, off to 93¼, its minimum since 1923; Atchison, New York Central, Union Pacific, General Motors, Allied Chemicals, Union Carbide, Lambert, Norfolk & Western and Paramount. Eastman Kodak broke below 150 for the first time since 1927. Ingersoll Rand and Auburn Auto were weak, the latter skidding 20 points after an early gain of 8. It closed 14 lower. Vanadium, Crucible and Worthington were late soft spots.

Steel Gains One Point.

The rally carried U. S. Steel to 96½, from which level it tapered off to 95¼, up a point net. American Can held half of a 4-point rise. Woolworth and Macy were strong. Bethlehem, Anaconda, National Biscuit, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Fox Film, Westinghouse and General Electric closed with fractional gains. American Telephone led the utilities with a rise of more than 2 points; otherwise, the group was rather heavy, averaging into new low ground. There was a small net loss in the rail division. Sales totaled 2,400,000 shares, a larger turnover than Monday's.

Although the exchange made no official comment on its questionnaire, Wall street recalled that the date of the last previous circular, November 13, 1929, witnessed the bottom of the bear market's first crash. It was also remembered that a statement on that inquest, made public by the President many months later, revealed the short interest during the early break was much smaller than estimated. Its size at present is the subject of conjecture, but brokerage houses say the volume of real liquidation in the past two or three months has been heavy. Nevertheless, the demand for stocks with which to make delivery on short contracts has recently increased.

Steel Output Losing.

Steel production is apparently still receding. American Metal Market reports a drop of 2 points to about 42 per cent of capacity, and finds nothing to indicate an upturn before August. "Meanwhile," it adds, "a low point may be struck in July at around the rate of last December which by the present capacity rating was 36 per cent." The automobile industry is making lighter demands.

The $45,000,000 increase in "other loans" shown by weekly reporting reserve member banks theoretically denoted an improvement in commercial borrowing, although part of the gain was doubtless due to larger acceptance holding security loans dropped $65,000,000 to just under $7,000,000,000, which offered further light on the source of stock sales.

Grains rallied. Wheat's net gains ranged from 1⅜ to 1¾, reflecting bullish Kansas estimates and a lack of rain in parts of the Northwest. Corn rose ⅝ to 1¾ on smaller receipts and firm cash markets. Cotton, very erratic, closed 45 to 60 cents a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Heavy selling on the Berlin boerse, attributed in part to the Austrian banking difficulties, caused the German mark to decline. Sterling Cables eased slightly. The French franc was strong.

BOND PRICES LOWER IN IRREGULAR SALES

Some Gilt-Edge Issues Lose as Cross-Currents Mark Trading on Exchange.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Cross currents marked the trading in bonds today, and closing prices were irregularly lower. During the first half of the session the market was dull, but it grew more active in the afternoon and sales on the stock exchange totaled $9,828,000, an increase of more than $1,000,000 over Monday.

The unevenness of the price movements appeared in slight losses by some of the gilt-edge issues and gains among other less desirable loans. American Telephone collateral 5s of 1946 and the debenture 5s of 1960 and 1965, American Smelting & Refining 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania series B and C 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Duquesne Light 4½s, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, Philadelphia Electric 4½s of 1967 and Western Union 5s of 1951 closed lower. A number of other bonds of similarly high rating were firm to higher, but the confident tone which this group has had recently was absent.

Most issues of secondary standing closed lower for the day. However, gains in the bonds of Brazil-Chile Mortgage Bank, Buenos Aires, Rio Grande do Sul, Pure Oil 5½s, Illinois Central 4¾s, International Telephone debenture 4½s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s and Missouri Pacific series I 5s served to emphasize the unevenness of the price changes.

Loans of the United States Government were dull until late in the session when the volume in several of this group increased and prices showed a firming tendency. The Federal Reserve Bank announced that details of an offering of Government securities, in addition to the $80,000,000 of bills to be sold on Thursday, may be expected on June 1.

Assistant Becomes Cashier After 15 Years' Service With Institution.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

William S. Strauss, first assistant cashier, Park Savings Bank, was promoted to cashiership of that institution at a meeting of the board of directors last night. As such, he will relieve Robert S. Stuntz, executive vice president and cashier, of the latter duties, Mr. Stuntz retaining the former title. Russell A. Houser, assistant cashier, was elected to succeed Mr. Strauss and H. M. Herndon, note teller, was named to succeed Mr. Houser.

Mr. Strauss, a former accountant, came to the bank fifteen years ago as junior clerk. Mr. Houser, formerly head teller, has been in the employ of the bank twelve years and was promoted to assistant cashier approximately three years ago. Mr. Herndon has also been in the service of the bank twelve years, coming to it from the Franklin National Bank.

April Statements Filed.

April statements of operation were filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission by the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Cos. and Washington Rapid Transit Co.

Spring tourist trade stimulated business for the latter and its report showed $6,191.52 net income for the month as compared with $4,318.91 for the month a year ago and a deficit in this item amounting to $3,480.25 for the preceding month this year. For the four months of 1931 there is a deficit in the item totaling $3,823.08, or $914.99 less than the deficit for the corresponding month last year.

April net income of Washington Gas Light Co. was $114,114.69 as compared with $109,916.47 for the month last year. For the first four months it amounts to $531,122.17, as contrasted with $381,113.80 for the similar comparative period in 1930.

Georgetown Light Net Is Lower.

Georgetown Gas Light Co.'s net was $12,732.24, a decrease from $21,730.30 in April 1930. Its net income for the four months is $55,661.65, as against $84,531.45 for the first four months of last year.

Announcement was made yesterday that employes of D. J. Kaufman, Inc., have been insured with retirement income bonds.

In discussing the arrangement with employes, Joseph D. "Radio Joe" Kaufman, of the corporation, said: "This plan has been carefully worked out for us by Russell Sheik, general agent of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. He and I have approached this matter from every angle and I recommend the plan to you as the best we could devise. You can only realize its possibilities as you go along, taking the weekly and yearly steps toward completion of your particular part of the plan. You will have a great feeling of satisfaction knowing your 'house is in order.'"

Examinations Set June 18.

The American College of Life Underwriters announces that George Washington University has arranged to hold the examinations June 18 to 20, for the chartered life underwriter certificate. Similar arrangements have been made by 30 other universities in various parts of the country. The total number of approved candidates is 600, indicating the great increase of interest among life insurance men in obtaining a professional status. Only successful life underwriters with over three years' experience and vouched for by the local authorities are eligible for the examinations, which deal with general education, economics, finance, law, the actuarial science and psychology.

The Washington Chapter of the American College Alumni consists of Maynard C. Burrell, H. Lawrence Choate, James A. DeForce, H. Cochran Fisher, Frank D. Roach and Dwight T. Scott.

Phone Revenue $1,236,168.

Telephone revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore City in April were $1,236,168, the report of operations just filed with the Maryland Public Service Commission shows. Expenses during the month were $896,671, making net telephone revenues $339,497.

Additional telephone facilities in Washington involving expenditures of $133,865, covering the installation of switchboard equipment in the District, Metropolitan and National central offices, underground conduit and cable extensions and new switchboard installations in several sections of the city, were authorized by the board of directors of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. at its regular monthly meeting held here yesterday.

This appropriation brings the total amount authorized for extensions and improvements to the telephone system in Washington so far this year to $1,851,041, according to a statement made by John A. Remon, general manager.

One of the largest public utility bond issues of the year is being placed on the market today with the offering by the National City Co., at a price of 101 and interest, of a new issue of $60,000,000 Consolidated Gas Co. of New York 20-year 4½ per cent gold debenture bonds, due June 1, 1951. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be used to discharge obligations for sums borrowed on short term notes and expended for additions and extensions to the properties of the system.

Prices Fall on Berlin Exchange 5 to 10 Points

Berlin, May 26 (A.P.).—Prices tumbled from five to ten points on the boerse today, Reichsbank shares losing seven. It was a bad day complicated by difficulties in which the old private banking firm of Auspitz, Lieben Co. of Vienna found itself, following closely upon the troubles of the Austrian Credit Bank. Both belong to the Rothschild group.

After slight recovery the market closed with a weakness which persisted after official hours.

DUTCH OIL SCOUTS FEAR OF U. S. YIELD

Sir Henri Deterding Blames Underconsumption for Losses in Price.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, general managing director of the Royal Dutch Co., states in his annual report to stockholders today that there is "no reason for any feeling of panic" regarding overproduction of petroleum in the United States.

Sir Henri reaches this conclusion after pointing to the decrease in stocks of crude oil on hand at the end of 1930, as compared to a year previously. Royal Dutch, which he heads, is the holding company for the world's largest group of oil producers, including the Shell Union Oil Corporation in the United States.

Sir Henri praises the "loyal producers" in the United States for doing "what they could to improve the statistical position of the industry."

Discussing the initiative of the Standard Oil of California in developing the plans for joint exploration and exploitation of the Kettleman Hills field, he says that this association will tend to prevent large fluctuations through its ability to counteract changes in production elsewhere.

Russia is "holding aloof" from the policy of restriction adopted by all oil-producing companies in the past year, the report charges. The report quotes Russian crude production in 1930 "according to Soviet statistics, which can not be verified," as 18,995,500 metric tons, compared with 14,645,857 metric tons in 1929. However, 1930 world production is estimated at 199,777,400 metric tons, as reduced from 211,046,033 metric tons the previous year.

The decline of prices in 1930 resulted from "underconsumption, and not overproduction," a phenomenon not confined to the oil industry, the report says.

The former Russian holdings of the company were confiscated by the Soviet government, and subsequent purchase of oil from these properties by the Standard Oil Co. of New York resulted in a controversy between the Royal Dutch-Shell and the interests of the latter company, including price cutting in the markets of India. Several compromises of this dispute have been reported, the latest being in April, 1930.

Curb Review

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—The decline in curb stocks moderated today, but a wide assortment of prominent issues penetrated further into new low territory.

Trading was moderately active, the day's turnover of 4480,000 shares exceeding yesterday's by about 80,000. Activity was concentrated in the utility shares, where the trend was in the main lower.

Niagara Hudson and American Superpower held their ground well, but Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric and United Light A eased fractionally to new low levels. Northern States Power A dropped 3½ to a new low at 122.

Oils held up a little better than they have of late, although the week's petroleum statistics were a little less favorable than last week's. Cities Service and Indiana eased a little, the latter touching a new minimum, but Gulf and Vacuum finished fractionally higher.

In the industrials, Parker Rust Proof shot up 7 points, then lost 4 of its gain. Pilot Radio, weak feature yesterday, recovered fractionally.

Aluminum Co., on the other hand, broke 5½ points to new low at 110½, and finished at 113. In a few odd lot deals, Bunker Hill declined 5 to a new low at 30, and Fajardo Sugar 7 to a new bottom at 25. Pan American Airways sagged nearly 2, and Ford, Ltd., yielded fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 25 (A.P.).—Canadian drought developments that bordered on sensational, together with a big slash in estimates of Kansas' 1931 wheat harvest figures, sent grain values soaring today. Dust storms were reported over the Canadian prairie provinces, with almost half the wheat acreage urgently in need of immediate drenching rains. Drought complaints were also received from domestic wheat territory, and a leading crop expert expressed belief that the Kansas wheat yield would be only about 158,000,000 bushels, the same as last year, instead of 200,000,000 bushels, a recent popular unofficial forecast.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to 1⅞ cents higher, corn 1½ to 1¾ advanced, oats ¾ up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Despite lively profit taking on upturns, the highest prices of the day in wheat were reached during the late dealings. The Canadian forecast gave no promise of adequate moisture relief, indications tempting to continued high winds and rainless skies, except possibly a few scattered showers. Montana and Nebraska reports of dearth of moisture were also of disheartening character. Kansas messages saying that unless rains came soon the wheat crop situation would be serious.

Radical cuts in Kansas crop estimates by one of the foremost unofficial experts were attributed largely to an excess of warm weather and above normal moisture in March, when conditions were said to have developed too heavy a stand of wheat in central and western Kansas, starting too many stools, which the available strength of the soils were unable to carry to maturity. It was said continued development of stools had been at the expense of main stalks, which would not make heads, and that recently a combination of winds, insufficient moisture, crusted surface, soil insect damage and root rots had left but a moderate stand of not too promising plants.

Corn and oats followed the lead of wheat, but corn was near its best at the start owing to favorable weather for the completion of corn planting. On the temporary dip corn sold at a new low price record for the season.

Provisions responded to a drop in hog values. Meats outdid the season's previous bottom quotations.

POTTERS HILL WINS IN SCHOLASTIC TEST

Fairfax County Group Attains Average of 97.8; Seventh Grades Participate.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Potters Hill School, in Mount Vernon district of Fairfax County, made the highest average in the Stanford standard seventh-grade tests recently given by Mrs. Elsie A. Davis, rural supervisor of white schools of the county. These tests were given to all the seventh-grade pupils. The Potters Hill School made an average of 97.8.

The tests were given for the first time this year in the county, if not the first time in the State, according to Mrs. Davis, who was assisted in the work by Miss Elizabeth Elimore, of Herndon; Miss M. Wander, of Falls Church, and Mrs. Willis Tanner, of Fairfax. The median for the school was 89.

According to Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson and Mrs. Davis, the results of the tests constitute a strong argument in favor of the larger consolidated rather than the local one and two room schools, as has been claimed by many in the last few years.

Of the 17 large consolidated schools in the county, 9 reached or exceeded the median, while only 1, Colchester, of the 1 and 2 teacher schools, reached the median, and only 3, Chesterbrook and Andrew Chapel, with 85, and Snowden, with 97, came close to the median. The standing of the nine large schools making the median were announced by Mrs. Davis as follows: otters Hill, 97.8; Falls Church, 97.7; Herndon, 93.8; Lee Jackson, 93; Fort Humphreys, 93; Floris, 89; Vienna, 88.9; Baileys Cross Roads and McLean, 88.8 each.

Of the 17 large schools, 9 reached or greatly exceeded the median of 80 in the reading tests, and 11 of the larger schools reached or exceeded the median in arithmetic. Of the smaller schools, only one reached and only one exceeded the median in arithmetic and not one school reached the median in reading. The highest individual score in the county was made by Helen McAslan, of Fairfax.

Washington Home Dedicated in Paris

Duplicate of Mount Vernon Made American Center at Exposition.

Paris, May 26 (A.P.).—America's most intimate monument on the banks of the Seine was thronged today by French and American leaders of Parisian society when a reproduction of Mount Vernon was officially inaugurated as the American pavilion at the French international, colonial and overseas exposition at Vincennes.

American visitors found the home of George Washington faithfully reproduced, and a simmering heat, rare for Paris, added to the illusion of a Virginian atmosphere.

Even the French speakers caught the spirit of the occasion, and delivered their talks in English. Andre Tardieu, minister of agriculture, and Paul Reynard, minister of colonies. Only Marshal Lyautey, commissioner-general of the exposition, spoke in French. American Ambassador Walter E. Edge emphasized America's avoidance of imperial expansion.

CONFERENCE ON TAX URGED BY REALTORS

Would Consider Duplication of Levies and New Long-Term Credit Plan.

Baltimore, May 26 (A.P.).—A national taxation conference to consider problems by "the tremendous duplication of taxing bodies" was recommended to the directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards today by the executive secretary, Herbert U. Nelson, of Chicago.

More than 1,400 tax bills were introduced in 44 States this year, says the report. It suggested that State and municipal governments be represented at the conference, which Nelson said should be called by President Hoover to work out a program of coordination.

A new long-term credit system, providing for financing home ownership transactions over periods of fifteen to eighteen years, also was recommended for the approval of the directors. Nelson said the system should be comprehensive enough to serve large and small banks and trust companies, discounting their mortgages.

Such a plan, he said, "would make home owning easier, make all real estate more liquid, create a sounder and less costly second mortgage structure, and establish a form of banking control over real estate credit, which would result in sound appraisals."

The home buyer who negotiates a three or five year mortgage knows that it will be impossible for him to complete payment in that time, says the report, and points out the hazards of finding new financing in "midstream."

A total membership in the association of 42,829, the largest for any year but one in the last decade, was reported.

The directors met on the eve of the national convention, which opens tomorrow with 1,500 or more realtors from this country and Canada expected.

ANNAPOLIS PARTIES COMPLETE SLATES

Two Democrats in Fight for Mayor, in Opposition to G. O. P. Incumbent.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 26.—The time limit for candidates for municipal offices in Annapolis expired today and found the Republicans with a complete harmony ticket, thereby avoiding a primary contest, but the Democrats face a primary fight for the mayoralty nomination, with two candidates in the field.

The rival Democratic candidates for the mayoralty are Col. John De P. Douw and Dr. Gordon H. Claude, former mayors. Col. Douw has gained the support of the "organization" leaders of the party which he has fought for a quarter of a century, allied with the "progressive" faction. Dr. Claude, running independently, claims his candidacy is mustering considerable support.

The primaries will be held June 15, but the real battle will be waged at the election July 11. Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican, is seeking reelection, with indications that the battle will be between him and Col. Douw.

The slate of other candidates to go before the electorate in July follows:

For counselors, Roscoe C. Rowe, Republican; George B. Woelfel, Democrat, incumbent.

Aldermen—First Ward, M. Oden Stewart and Albino Dimaggion, Republicans; Jesse A. Fisher and Harry M. Leitch, Democratic incumbents. Second Ward, Reese Wimbrow and Charles S. Sherman, Republicans; Arthur T. Elliott, incumbent, and Anthony C. Davis, Democrats. Third Ward, Samuel S. Stokes and John I. Moody, Republicans; Thomas G. Basil, incumbent, and Harry Bean, Democrats. Fourth Ward, Charles A. Oliver, Charles L. Spriggs, Negroes, both incumbents. The large proportion of the Negro vote is centered in this ward and because of the forlorn hope of success the Democrats made no nominations.

Suicide Revealed By Finding Body

Capital Man Took Own Life in Virginia Week Ago, Coroner Contends.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 26.—The decomposed body of a man found on a wooded hilltop beside the Richmond-Washington highway, 7 miles from here this morning by F. D. Quick, a telegraph lineman, was identified as A. Crayas, 55, former restaurant worker, whose home was at 359 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Washington.

A verdict of suicide by shooting himself was rendered by Dr. W. A. Harris, Spottsylvania County coroner. A .32 caliber revolver with one chamber discharged was found beside the body, which had been in the woods since May 18, when Crayas left a motor bus in Fredericksburg and walked to the spot where he ended his life.

He is survived by his widow and a daughter. Identification was made when State Motorcycle Officer Sam Redding took a description of the dead man to Quantico, where Crayas formerly worked in a restaurant. Crayas was believed to have been despondent because he could not find work.

Candidate Announces As Filing Limit Nears

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 26.—Candidates for the General Assembly have ten days to enter their names for the Democratic primary, to be held August 4.

Senator N. B. Early probably will be unopposed, but it is likely that the two members of the House of Delegates, L. L. Watts and John S. Battle, will have opposition. Lilburn B. Bailey, of Rio, has filed, and it is likely J. M. Rogers, from the same section, also will enter the fight.

NURSES' REGISTRY ISSUE IS REOPENED

Alexandria Hospital Head Takes Exception to Certain Rules.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 923.

The lady board of managers of the Alexandria Hospital, through Mrs. S. Cooper Dawson, president, yesterday took exception to rules and regulations recently promulgated by the Alexandria Nurses Alumnae Association in establishing a registry. Representatives of the nurses had appeared before the board, which favored establishment of a registry, and last week the nurses announced that a central registry of State registered nurses of the city had been established, with Miss Clara Talbott, 314 South St. Asaph street, as registrar.

The announcement of the nurses stated that the object of the registry was to serve as a factor in raising the standard of the nursing profession in Alexandria by accepting only registered nurses, "promoting in them, through fraternal affiliation, a spirit of progressiveness, and securing the recognition, by physicians and the public at large, of representing the best material obtainable to the end that both the best interests of the nurses and the public be secured."

Mrs. Dawson declared that the rules and regulations adopted by the nurses were not submitted to her board for approval, and "they are the only ones who have any authority to make rules for the Alexandria Hospital."

The board and the superintendent, Mrs. Dawson declared, will support the registry and help nurses to obtain work, but informed the nurses, in effect, that the hospital was built for the sick, and not for support of nurses, and that the sick are first in the minds of the board.

The particular rule to which Mrs. Dawson takes exception is No. 18, which States, "No nurse is allowed to nurse in the Alexandria Hospital unless she is a member of the registry." With reference to this Mrs. Dawson declared, "we are glad to call the registry first, and if they are unable to furnish a suitable nurse within a reasonable time, we will call a nurse from the Central Registry, or anyone who is able to show their proper credentials. Any patient, who has a relative or friend who is properly registered, and asks to bring them in the hospital, will be granted that request. A doctor asking for any nurse, whether she is on the register or not, will not be refused, unless she is one who has no credentials or who has not abided by the rules of the institution."

Among the rules of the nurses is one which states that "Graduate nurses of other States and hospitals who have registered in the State of Virginia, and who conform to the rules of the registry, are not to be called until after the Alexandria nurses have been supplied with work."

ARCHITECT CLEARED IN STEEL COLLAPSE

Added Safety Measure for School Building to Be Concrete Walls.

The municipal architect's office was vindicated yesterday of any responsibility for the Roosevelt High School steel framework collapse last month in a report of a special committee named by District Commissioners to make a thorough investigation. At the same time a proposal of Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, was accepted as an added precautionary measure.

The change in plans which was adopted on Maj. Gotwals' recommendation consists merely of substituting reinforced concrete for brickwork to a height of 21 feet above the stage elevation so that the steel skeleton would be doubly supported.

Much of the controversy between District engineers and the Heron Todd Construction Co., which erected the steel, centered about whether or not the steel structure was amply supported by the proposed 18-inch brick wall which was to inclose the steel columns. Maj. Gotwals said that the strength of reinforced concrete in this regard had never been questioned.

The change will not affect the appearance of the school as the exterior walls will be faced with brick so that the same architectural result will be achieved.

Answering the two engineering questions put to it by Maj. Gotwals, the board of inquiry, which was headed by Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, declared that the type of construction as designed for the Roosevelt High School is "sound beyond question" with two conditions, and that "it is practicable to erect this type of construction without hazard of collapse."

While contending that the free standing steel columns embedded in brick walls, as designed for the school in question, is "sound beyond question," the board added the conditions that the steel columns must be able to carry all vertical loads, including the roof, independent of the inclosing walls, and that they must be so designed and so braced as "to carry all lateral loads, including wind pressure, without dependence on the inclosing walls."

Col. John W. Oehmann, District building inspector, in a supplementary report, declared that the design of the municipal architect's office was "undoubtedly safe," but he suggested that it be made to conform with the standard practice "that the entire load be carried by the steel without support from the adjacent masonry."

The board of inquiry included also Edward W. Donn, jr., an architect, and Lester G. Wilson, a civil engineer, both engaged in private practice.

CROWLEY APPOINTED COUNTY POLICE HEAD

Selections Made Following Parley of Democrats in Prince Georges.

Jeremiah J. Crowley has been selected chief of police of Prince Georges County following a conference between Democratic members of the county commission and the Democratic county committee.

The selection was made last Saturday at a joint conference between the committee and the Democratic commissioners. In addition to Crowley, Arthur W. Hepburn, of Mount Rainier, and H. G. Machen, of Hyattsville, both unsuccessful candidates for the chief's office, were appointed sergeants. Others selected were Claude Reese, of Berwyn; Ralph Brown, of Chillum; Oscar Beall, Marlboro; William Gray Spaulding; William E. Clifton, Silver Hill, and William C. Quade, of Brandywine.

The fact that the Democrats chose only nine men for the force is said to indicate that the other two will be chosen by the Republicans. The two Republican members of the board of five commissioners were not present at the meeting Saturday.

Mr. Crowley, head of the water department of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, is a resident of Columbia Park. He was a deputy U. S. marshal in Washington from 1918 to 1920, and has worked for the sanitary commission since then.

Hepburn, Machen, and Reese are members of the former force. Hepburn was lieutenant under former Sheriff Charles S. Early, while Machen was sergeant. Reese was a private. Brown has been a constable for some years, often working with Reese.

Federal dry agents yesterday made their fourth raid in two days in Prince Georges County and arrested Charles Holle, of Greater Capitol Heights. The arrest followed the finding of a still near the town, when the owner of the land told the agents that a "Charles Holle" had been in the vicinity.

Holle said that the man the dry men sought was a Charles Hoyle, also of Greater Capitol Heights. Nevertheless, Holle was taken before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran and held in bond of $1,000 for hearing June 2. Charges of sale, possession and manufacture were made against him.

O. B. Zantzinger, jr., yesterday appeared before the board of county commissioners to offer a fourth site for the proposed new county building in Hyattsville. Zantzinger suggested use of the Howard property, a large frame structure in back of the Armory. Grounds of 4¾ acres surround the building, which could be rented for $400 per month, he said.

A hearing will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Hyattsville on the choice of a building. Three structures already have been offered to the commissioners: the home of the old First National Bank Building, a row of new stores on Rhode Island avenue, and the Hyattsville Building Association offices. The bank building is generally regarded as being the most likely choice, but some opposition has been voiced to the establishment of a jail in the basement.

State roads commission officials said yesterday a contract had been let for 1½ miles of gravel road to be built between Gallant Green and Aquasco. Construction is expected to start at once.

Unofficial reports of the removal of the station agent at Brentwood were verified yesterday when the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad filed with the Public Service Commission a petition for permission to make the change. Beginning on June 8 the Brentwood business will be transacted through the Hyattsville station if the commission approves the move.

The removal of the station agent at Riverdale also will be reopened in a conference today between Max Vollberg, mayor of the town, and railroad officials. The change was suggested in April, but civic organizations objected and a proposed hearing was indefinitely postponed. The company was successful, however, in getting permission of the commission to a similar change at Branchville, despite opposition.

Before filing notice of the change at Brentwood, railroad officials conferred with merchants to see if there would be an objection. At the time of the filing of the Brentwood petition permission was asked to remove nine other station agents in the State, none of them being in Prince Georges County, however. They affect the stations at Breatheds, Hanover, Hood Mills, Morgan, Weverton, Gaplans and Rohrersville.
